Body found

HAYTI — The body of a stillborn baby girl was found about 3:45 p.m. Tuesday in a ditch along a gravel road two miles northeast of Hayti, according to the Pemiscot County sheriff's department.

The baby had been wrapped in a blanket and apparently thrown into the ditch from a car. The body was found near a highway department shed.

A spokesman at the sheriff's office said an autopsy showed that the child was stillborn with an RH blood factor. It was a twin, but not an identical twin, the report said. The autopsy report also showed that the other twin could be normal, according to the spokesman.

Noranda contract ratified by union

PORTAGEVILLE— Approximately 300 members of United Steel Workers of American Local 7686 Tuesday ratified a new 39- month contract with Noranda Aluminum Inc. by a 5 to 1 majority at a meeting in the National Guard Armory.

Workers began reporting for work today at the plant near Marston to end a 117-day - old strike which began when the old contract expired Jan. 31.

Four negotiating sessions had been held between company and union representatives since the strike began before agreement on a tentative contract was reached Thursday night.

A union source said the new contract, which expires Aug. 31, 1977, provides an estimated 90 to 95 per cent of the basic aluminum pact which was agreed upon in February by other aluminum companies and unions.

In addition to a wage increase, overall benefits extended in the new contract include upgraded life and hospitalization programs, supplementary benefits for unemployment, cost of living provisions, holidays and vacation time and vacation bonus plan.

The contract also includes a no strike clause.

Judge to rule on Harris murder case Tuesday

A decision on whether or not to bind Jim Harris, 201 Luther St., over to Circuit Court on a charge of first-degree murder was taken under advisement Tuesday by Magistrate Lloyd Briggs following a preliminary hearing in the Sikeston City Courtroom.

Briggs said he will rule on the case next Tuesday.

Harris is accused in the shooting death of Enoch "Red" Simmons March 4 at Harris's Cafe on Luther Street.

A previous first- degree murder charge was dismissed when Briggs ruled the state had failed to prove cause of death.

Witnesses testifying for the state during Tuesday's hearing were Scott County Coroner Gene Nunnelee and Willie Jones of Sikeston.

Nunnelee testified that he examined Simmons' body at Missouri Delta Community Hospital on March 4 and found five bullet wounds.

Jones, who was inside Harris's cafe at 210 Luther St. on the night of the shooting, said he saw Haris and Simmons having an argument and then start to fight. Jones said Simmons left the cafe and Harris told him not to come back, then when Simmons did return, Harris shot him four times.

"After the shooting Harris went back behind the counter, laid his gun down and started drinking a soda," Jones said.

Syria, Israel agree today to disengage

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel and Syria concluded a separation of forces agreement today after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger won a major Israeli concession on Palestinian guerrilla attacks.

The concession was not spelled out immediately.

Premier Golda Meir is to announce the agreement tonight, Israeli and Syrian commanders will sign the pact in Geneva in a few days, and the fighting is to stop and prisoners on both sides freed at that time.

At the United Nations in New York, a U.N. spokesman said the United States had informed the world body that Israel and Syria had agreed to disengage their forces on the Golan Heights front.

The spokesman said if requested the United Nations could shift troops from the U.N. Emergency Force standing between Egyptian and Israeli troops in Sinai to man a buffer zone between the Syrians and Israelis on the Golan Heights.

Unofficial Israeli informants said 1,250 U.N. troops would set up the buffer and that it would be one to four miles wide. They said it would stretch from Mt. Hermon along the Golan Heights, including the abandoned Golan capital of Quneitra and a strip 300 yards west of the wrecked town.

They said on each side of the buffer the armies would be reduced in two corridors, each six miles wide. In the front line corridor, troops would be limited to 6,000, with 75 tanks and 36 short-range cannon. In the deeper zone, each side would be restricted to 450 tanks, with no long-range artillery or antiaircraft missiles, they said.

Despite the lack of official confirmation, newsmen were invited to Mrs. Meir's office to drink a toast with Kissinger.

"It's all wrapped up," said one source close to Kissinger's negotiations. "It only needs the cabinet to ratify it and that is a formality."

Israel's state radio said the disengagement pact would be signed by Israeli and Syrian delegates in Geneva at the end of this week.

Mrs. Meir's cabinet met early this morning to discuss the pact, then scheduled an afternoon session during which it would decide "yes or no," according to an Israeli government communique. It said the decision would be final.

Information Minister Shimon Peres told newsmen he expected the announcement would be in "very general terms."

Meanwhile, Israeli officials said Mrs. Meir may quit office in the next 24 hours and turn over the government to Premier-Designate Yitzhak Rabin.

Bumpers ends 30-year career of Sen. Fulbright

Fast-rising political newcomer Dale Bumpers ran away with the Arkansas Democratic senatorial nomination and ended the 30-year career of J. W. Fulbright, one of the leading powers in American foreign policy.

The two-term Aransas governor ran up almost a 2-to-1 victory margin Tuesday over Fulbright, who has been chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee for 15 years.

At the same time, 73-year-old Wayne Morse was winning the Democratic senatorial nomination for a political comeback in Oregon.

Morse, who like Fulbright was a leading Senate critic of U.S. Vietnam policy, will meet Sen. Robert Packwood in the fall. Packwood, who ousted Morse after 24 years in the Senate in 1968, was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

In Kentucky, another of the Democratic new faces, Gov. Wendell Ford, won the party's nomination to challenge Republican Sen. Marlow Cook in November. Both scored easy victories over token primary opposition.

Just four years ago, Bumpers was a school board member and city attorney in Charleston, Ark., a town of 1,500. But in 1970 he upset former six-term Gov. Orval E. Faubus in the Democratic primary and went on to oust incumbent Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller.

He won re-election in 1972.

Both Fulbright and Bumpers said they were surprised at the size of Bumpers' win.

Bumpers, 48, had called for new leadership in Washington to deal with problems such as inflation, energy, federal spending and post-Watergate political clean-up. Fulbright stressed his seniority and experience, but at 69 said he would "cheerfully accept" retirement if that was the voters' verdict.

With 2,626 of the state's 2,786 precincts reporting, Bumpers had 345,801 votes, or 65 per cent, to Fulbright's 187,718, or 35 per cent.

Morse, who was voted out at the height of his anti-Vietnam war effort, used the related theme of usurpation of constitutional power by the President, but said "the numbers of us opposed to it are increasing."

With 1,647 of the 2,514 Oregon precincts reporting, Morse had 89,211 votes, or 49.2 per cent, compared to 71,604, or 39.5 per cent, for his chief opponent in the four-way race, state Senate President Jason Boe.

In the Arkansas Democratic gubernatorial primary, former Rep. David H. Pryor, 39, of Little Rock held a bare majority of 51 per cent. Faubus was in second place with 33 per cent, followed by Lt. Gov. Bob Riley. Pryor must stay above 50 per cent to avoid a runoff.

In the Oregon gubernatorial race, state Sen. Victor Atiyeh scored an upset victory over Secretary of State Clay Myers in the Republican primary, while former state Treasurer Robert Straub led a field of 10 Democrats.

Republican Gov. Tom McCall is barred by Oregon law from seeking a third consecutive term.

With 3,139 of Kentucky's 3,268 precincts reporting, the 47-yearold Cook had 87.2 per cent of the Republican vote, and Ford, 49, had 84.8 per cent in the Democratic primary.

9 plead guilty to criminal charges

NEW MADRID — Nine persons pleaded guilty to criminal charges Tuesday in Circuit Court before Judge William L. Ragland, who sentenced six and suspended sentencing against three who were placed on probation for a period of two years each.

George Dawson of New Madrid was granted probation without supervision when he was sentenced to two years in the custody of the State Department of Corrections on a felonious stealing charge. Dawson and Dean Pipkin were accused of stealing a five- ton air conditioner valued at $600 on Jan. 25 which belonged to Ralph Lewis.

Sentencing was suspended against Pipkin, and he was placed on probation for two years.

In three other cases of felonious stealing against Dawson and Ernest Lee Minehart of New Madrid Route One, Dawson was granted probation without supervision after being sentenced to two years in each case. The sentences are to run concurrently, with the first sentence imposed against him.

Sentencing was suspended against Minehart in each of the cases and he was placed on probation for two years to run concurrently with the first which was imposed in connection with the theft of a 40 horsepower outboard motor on Jan. 27 which was owned by Carl Parks and valued at $350.

Minehart and Dawson were also accused of stealing an assortment of hand tools, a grinder and jack, valued together at $300 from Taylor Towing Co. on Jan. 22, and two tires and wheels valued at $100 on Jan. 27 from Bill Henry.

Sentencing was suspenced against James Michael Hall of New Madrid Route One and he was placed on probation for two years when he pleaded guilty to the theft of the outboard motor from Parks along with Dawson and Minehart.

Glen Brimer was sentenced to two years in custody of the Department of Corrections on a felonious stealing charge after he pleaded guilty to stealing a four- wheel drive pickup truck on April 17 which was owned gy W. L. Ramsey Jr.

Phillip Eugene Hill of Gideon was placed on probation with supervision after being sentenced to two years for leaving the scene of an accident on July 19, 1973 on Highway 62 in New Madrid County.

Ken Keith was sentenced to two years for burglary and was granted probation with supervision. A larceny charge against Keith was dismissed by the state. Keith was charged in connection with a break- in on Sept. 15, 1973 at Delta Auto Parts and Salvage in Portageville, owned by Gene Daugherty.

A two- year sentence was imposed against Don Laws and he was granted probation without supervision when he pleaded guilty to buying and receiving stolen property. He was accused of buying a .410 gauge automatic shotgun owned by Harlan Gilmer and a single- shot shotgun owned by Walter Ivy, when he allegedly knew the guns had been stolen.

Dick Roy Tesson received the same sentence and probation when he pleaded guilty to selling a stolen 1972 model automobile.

Marriages ordered dissolved included William Ray Reeves of Marston and Patsie Ann Reeves of Matthews Route One; Jean Ann Chism of Portageville and Jimmy Chism; Lester Maurice Darnall of Portageville and Deborah Faye Darnall; Carolyn Sue Underwood and Phillip Lewis Underwood of Portageville. Mrs. Underwood was awarded custody of one child and $25 per week for support and maintenance.

Barbara Jane Carruth of New Madrid received custody of two children and $15 per week per child for support when her marriage to Everett Jackson Carruth was dissolved.

Public Finance Corp. was granted $1,165.69 judgment in a suit on a note against Leroy and Virgie Jackson of Catron Route One; and a $832.93 judgment in a suit on a note against Charles and Nora White of Marston.

LET'S MOVE ON THE METRIC SYSTEM

The United States is slowly converting to the metric system of measurements on a piecemeal basis, but we have still not adopted it at the national level.

Recently the House rejected a bill that would have guided conversion to the metric system voluntarily over the next ten years. This time the bill failed because of a battle over who should pay the cost of making the change.

Conversion to the system, which is now used in every other major nation in the world, would have a far- reaching effect in this country. It would change inches, feet, miles, pints and pounds to centimeters, kilometers, liters and grams. It would affect measurements in the home as well as in business. It would call for a revolution in the use of mathematics and the retaining of millions of workers. It would also require new sets of tools marked with the new measurements.

Educators, businessmen, scientists and builders have become convinced that the time has long passed when the United States should catch up with the rest of the world and use the system of measurement which is the most adaptable.

In some parts of the country and in some business and engineering projects the conversion has already taken place. For automobile manufacturers have switched to metric and some school systems are preparing to convert their textbooks to the metric system by 1976.

Proponents of the system point out that American trade suffers from not using the same system as our trading partners.

The House rejection came because of disagreement and confusion over the cost of new tools and retraining of workers. Although it is predicted that the bill is dead for this session, there is a stronger bill pending in the Senate. The Senate bill would require all federal contractors to convert to the metric system within the next ten years.

We urge the Senate to approve the measure and send it to the House where a compromise could be worked out before we waste more time. Here is one area where this country has failed in its support of progress. It's time to stop dragging our feet.

LOWERING MORAL STANDARDS

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Morality Agency has just announced that it was lowering its moral standards for the next two years.

Fosdick Fleigenheimer told me, "We feel we can lower the moral level of the country without its becoming hazardous to anyone's health."

"But why?" I protested.

"The whole idea behind the Environmental Morality Agency mandate was to clean up the political pollution in the country."

"We don't like to lower the standards," Fleigenheimer said, "but we have no choice. If we raise the levels of morality in 1974, we could cause massive unemployment on Capitol Hill in November. We also feel that Congress and the Administration need more time to study the best way of doing away with political pollution. I assure you the agency is still very concerned about the problem, but we do have to consider the costs."

"What about the public? They were counting on higher moral standards after Watergate."

"We've done some extensive testing in our laboratories, and we've considered that the average American can take far more lying from his government than anyone thought he could. We know that we can increase the dose of false statements and contradictions three times the present level, and people could still live with it. While cleaning up the Watergate atmosphere is an ideal goal, Congress and the President do not want to throw out the baby with the bath water."

"That's well put," I told Fleigenheimer. "But aren't you going to have to do something within the next two years to show the country you are sincere about instituting higher moral standards in the

"I assure you we're doing everything we can within reason. The do-gooders want us to destroy the whole system in the name of morality. But it can't be done overnight. The important thing to remember is that we have been living very well with low morality levels for a long time. Some people have even thrived on them."

"Who sets the morality standards for the country?" I asked.

"The President of the United States. He is in the best position to know just how much morality the country can stand."

"But according to the transcripts, the President was shown to have very low moral standards. Isn't it dangerous to let one man have that much power?"

"Possibly. But as Father McLaughlin, who is the White House adviser, put it, 'Who wants a saint in the White House?'"

"That's true. But in 1968 President Nixon said he would clean up the political climate produced by the Democrats by 1972. Now it turns out the atmosphere is so bad you can choke on it."

"Nobody's perfect," Fleigenheimer said defensively. "If the President of the United States can live with lower moral standards, so can the rest of the country."

"Suppose Ralph Nader or John Gardner sues your agency for not carrying out the provisions of the Political Clean Air Act. What will you do then?"

"We'd have to defend ourselves. We'll tap their telephones, audit their income taxes, break into their offices and steal their doctors' records."

"That should do it," I said.

Fleigenheimer said, "You have to keep in mind political expediencey in Washington must always have priority over unrealistic moral standards. Otherwise everyone in this

RELIEF IN ADVERTISING

For many years we have been a searcher for and regular reader of personals in the classified columns of various papers. We can never remember one which appealed to us like this one in the St. Louis Globe Democrat last Friday. "Attention to all: Please pray for Danny Strohmeyer, 16 mos. old, dying of meningitis, alive by machine only." It was unsigned. We prayed, and expect countless others did. We imagine it was all that Danny's mother realized she could do to help her baby boy, and we feel sure the advertisement gave her a certain amount of relief from her grief.

GASOLINE SHORTAGES, LOW SPEED, LESS TRAVEL

For May, nationwide, there will be a 10.4% increase in gasoline supplies over April although Missouri is one of four states whose supply will be cut. Ours will go down 6%, one of only four states to lose in total supplies.

Beginning in June, however, the Federal Energy Administration at Washington last week predicted a return of shortages for the rest of 1974.

The predictions are a continuing argument for the present 55 mile speed limits, a definite saving for passenger vehicles; and the planning of vacations during which all of us will travel less, go shorter distances, and stay longer in one place.

EFFICIENCY MAY BE CAUSING DAMAGING PICTURE

St. Louis was recently conceded to have the most efficient system of keeping crime statistics of any city in the nation.

And because of this very efficiency and top rank it seems to be going to the top of the cities class in rate of crime per thousand people.

Cities of the nation are rated according to the number of crimes reported, not on those actually committed that never get on the record of less efficient city governments.

Chances are that the St. Louis crime rate is no greater than in other cities of its class and size in the United States, but it is getting an unsavory reputation, it now seems, because other cities have a less efficient crime reporting system, and therefore a smaller percentage of their crimes reported.

Sometimes you just can't win, no matter how efficient you are.

NOTICE ANYTHING SIMILAR?

He saved his country from a lot of anxiety by getting out, and assumed the responsibility of having named that man to the office he held. Do any of you readers see any similarity country? We greatly fear we'll go through nearly three more years of fear, shame and lack of leadership because we have a man who hides things from his people, refuses to tell Congress what it wants to know, and daily loses the confidence his nation ought to have in him. THE UNKNOWN QUANTITY -- WHAT TECHNOLOGY COULD DO

Forecasters of trends in human affairs are invariably wide of the mark -- for one very good reason. Their forecasts must, of necessity, rest on contemporary knowledge.

As for example, in the days of Columbus, who could have foretold the impact of the invention of the airplane or the development of transatlantic jet service?

So it is today with the forecasters, especially those who underrate the role of technology in the future development.

A sample of what technology could do is indicated by a report from Brigham Young university, Provo, Utah, where scientists report they have achieved a "theoretical breakthrough" in the harnessing of fusion power. If these scientists are correct, so the report goes, controlled fusion in the laboratory might well be demonstrated in the next five years instead of in the mid-1990s as expected by most experts.

In terms of everyday life, what are the implications of this ''theoretical breakthrough?"

It is said that, if fusion reactors can be perfected, their benefits to mankind will be legion.

The National Observer notes these benefits include no radioactive waste or pollutants to befoul the environment; cheap production of hydrogen gas which can replace natural gas and fuel zero pollution automobiles; much safer power plant designs than the old-fashioned fission reactors and an inexhaustible, inexpensive, superpowerful, light- weight fuel supply, making possible such things as more practical interpanetary travel. There could be the possibility of interstellar travel that would put the stars within reach of man and open a frontier without end.

Forecasts of the future that entertain such views as these are not pipe dreams.

They reflect the frontier of scientific thinking that has always made a shambles of forecasting the future twists and turns of mankind's existence on Earth.

KLEINDIENST'S GUILT

Former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst has pleaded guilty to a charge that he "did refuse and fail to answer accurately and fully questions" by the Senate Judiciary Committee during his 1972 confirmation hearings. The offense is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine and up to a year in jail.

Kleindienst is lucky not to be charged with perjury, a felony.

Kleindienst was the official ultimately responsible for settlement of the government's anti- trust action against the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ITT). The Senate committee was intensly interested in the part played in settlement of the case by the White House and in the effect of an ITT contribution to the Republican Party.

Kleindienst declared under questioning, "In the discharge of my responsibilities as the acting attorney general in these cases, I was not interfered with by anybody at the White House. I was not importuned. I was not pressured. I did not have conferences with respect to what I should or should not do."

In response to a direct question if there were any "suggestions coming from the White House as to what action should be taken by the Justice Department" on the ITT case, Kleindienst replied, "No sir."

It was disclosed subsequently that President Nixon had telephoned Kleindienst and ordered him to stop appearling an ITT anti-trust decision that went against the government. The Justice Department's anti- trust division had recommended the appeal. Kleindienst later threatened to resign and the President withdrew the order.

The charge against Kleindienst that he "did refuse and fail to answer accurately and fully" is based on the failure to disclose the President's order to drop the Supreme Court appeal.

The special prosecutor's decision to go easy on Kleindienst and not press perjury charges evidently is in return for the former attorney general's cooperation. To Kleindienst's credit, he did stand up to the President and insist on the appeal.

But it is evident that Kleindienst misled the Senate committee while testifying under oath. His testimony amounted to a cover-up of the President's involvement in the ITT case. The President was aware of the cover-up and acquiesced in it by doing nothing to set the record straight.

A former head of the U. S. Department of Justice pleading guilty to a criminal charge is a dismaying sight. No less dismaying is that the President shares responsibility for the hookwinking of the Senate.

THE VIEWS ON MR. NIXON

It is almost unbelievable what one reads in newspapers in defense of President Richard M. Nixon. There are many letters to the editors praising Mr. Nixon to the skies and downgrading anyone who takes exception to the man.

Mr. Nixon is not a friend of the press. He never has been and he never will be. He is not a friend of the television groups and he never will be. In fact, Mr. Nixon is hard run for friends at this time.

There are letters about the outrageous statements about Mr. Nixon. One can only laugh them off. Any person who has read any part of the tapes has to be aware of the fact that Mr. Nixon was quite foolish in ever releasing them.

Maybe they do not convict him, but most certainly those tapes do not put Mr. Nixon on any type of a pedestal. There are those who would like to refer back to the swearing of other Presidents. That, of course, is stupid talking and stupid thinking. The language Mr. Nixon has used is not only offensive, it is repulsive.

Democrats seem very content to leave Mr. Nixon in office now. That could be because there is an election coming up in a matter of weeks and they would like to use Mr. Nixon as a stepping stone into office. Republicans, many of them, on the other hand, want him out of office so that their chances of winning an election are enhanced.

It is also so strange, this government of ours. Most persons certainly would have to agree that Mr. Nixon's success as a President is ended. Regardless of what happens from here on out, Mr. Nixon will never be an effective leader. He may serve out his remaining months in office, but Richard Nixon has lost whatever greatness he ever had. And he did it all by himself.

PRINTED WORD ENDURES

From the time television assumed a major role in the art of human communications, there have been those who have felt the demise of the printed word was only a matter of time. Yet, as Mr. James J. Kilpatrick has written: "... the situation is far from hopeless. The late Douglas Southall Freeman used to complain, in his melacholy moments, that newspapermen write on sand. In a sense we do. Yet this is better than television, which writes on wind. The printed word must always have this enormous advantage over TV -- that it is available to the reader at his convenience, to be absorbed in whole or in part, at any hour; to be clipped, filed, or mailed. Some of the products of our labor may be used to wrap the fish, but as a medium of communication, the printed word endures." Both TV and the printed word have their places so long as we live in a land where freedom of speech and freedom of the press stand as bulwarks of liberty.

TRUTH ALIVE

Truth is still alive in the world. Even in Russia, where thought control is practiced with scientific precision, thoughts of freedom stir in the breasts of the masses. Some persons are even willing to risk jail to express those thoughts and share them. "The Chronicle of Current Events" is an underground publication that reportedly tells the true story of what is happening in Russia. A wire service dispatch to American newspapers recently said the "Chronicle" has resumed publication after having been suppressed for 18 months. The story, filed from Moscow, said that when the publication was shut down a year and a half ago, many arrests were made by the secret police.

The re-awakening of the "Chronicle" may not seem very significant to the citizens of the U.S., where freedom of speech and press exist. It should be recalled, however, that the Correspondents of the early days of our country were engaged in printing the clandestine message of freedom. They helped pave the way for a new nation.

It behooves us all to exercise our right of speech and publication. Let us all tell the editors of newspapers, through letters, what we think of national and international affairs. Freedom of thought and expression are basic to political truth. If we do not exercise our precious rights now, generations that follow us may also have to publish underground chronicles. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Wine and Blood: Teamsters Chief Confers Privately With Cardinal -- Protests Church's Support of Chavez

WASHINGTON — Whether they've sought it or not, eminent Catholic clergymen, and indeed, some of their highest church bodies, have been thrust smash into the national political and labor conflicts of these agitated days.

Controversy over possible punishment of White House aide, the Jesuit Rev. John J. McLaughlin by his superior and the role of Massachusetts Congressman Rev. Robert Drinan, who loathes Dick Nixon, has surfaced on front pages.

But the Teamsters effort to swing the National Conference of Catholic Bishops (NCCB) from its powerful support of Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers (UFW) boycott of table grapes and head lettuce harvested by Teamsters union members has gone unreported.

For example, during the morning of May 17, Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons spent some two hours with the Archbishop of Washington, the Most Reverend William Cardinal Baum. It's natural that Fitzsimmons should turn to the Cardinal. Though virtually all major American religious bodies have endorsed Chavez's tiny union, the toughest, most militant most consistent backing of the UFW (AFL-CIO) has come from the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. This is a very influential organization since it is comprised of all Catholic Bishops.

Further, it has a five- year - old bishops' Committee on Farm Labor which has lashed at the Teamsters for absorbing some 50,000 field workers, mostly Chicanos, who formerly were in the Chavez fold.

Fitzsimmons, himself a devout Catholic, reportedly told Cardinal Baum that he had dispatched a long telegram last November to His Eminence John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia. The latter is president of the bishops' national Conference which has sharply criticized the Teamsters last November.

According to one version of the conversation between Cardinal Baum and the Teamsters chief, Fitzsimmons said he had never received a reply from Cardinal Krol. Further, the union president said bitterly he had not been permitted to appear before the bishops' 14th national conference last November when it adopted a stinging anti-Teamsters pro- boycott resolution -- which called for free elections among field workers so they could pick a union of their choice.

Actually there is no reason why some impartial body shouldn't now be selected to run these elections. There are ample precedents for such action. Fitzsimmons did ask Cardinal Baum to make it possible to sit with a smaller bishops' coordinating committee so he could tell the Teamsters story.

Cardinal Baum, of course, is of considerable prestige in clerical and lay circles. He is a member of the NCCB's administrative committee as well as sitting on several other bodies. But he is not on the farm labor committee.

This group is headed by Bishop Joseph Donnelly of Hartford. It is advised by the internationally famed scholar and writer, Msgr. George Higgins whose devout passion is Chavez and the Mexican-American workers. It is not their faith to hate. But they come mighty close to it when they discuss some Teamsters leaders.

They are in intimate touch with the AFL-CIO which now, under president George Meany's direction, slowly is building a national boycott machine. Almost weekly there is an outpouring of anti-Teamsters boycott material flowing from the federation's Union Label and Service Trades Dept. to all AFL-CIO central labor councils. At last count there were 831 of these in all states and most major communities.

For his part, Fitzsimmons and his own high command have publicly and privately assured other labor leaders that they can't expect any Teamsters' support anywhere, under any circumstances, if they join in the boycott of grapes (and wines made from them) and lettuce picked by Teamsters members.

"If you are not with us, you must be against us," Fitzsimmons has said. "We do not propose to support unions that are fighting us."

But this is the secular front, for the moment the less significant. It's on the ecclesiastical front that Fitzsimmons now is fighting.

The Teamsters want the church, the Catholics in particular and the others in general, to get out of this labor conflict. He has put it more bluntly. He has told some priests to stay home and care for spiritual matters and leave labor to its leaders.

This isn't apt to happen. Msgr. Higgins, who is based in Washington, is in what might be called the National Conference's secretariat, and has no intention of abandoning Chavez and the UFW. Thus, Fitzsimmons' long dialogue with Cardinal Baum Archbishop of Washington is of considerably significance if the prelate should intervene.

Perhaps out of all this can come those much discussed free elections and the wine will flow instead of blood.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Postmaster General Ted Klassen, like a kindly old uncle, has been padding the postal payroll with his cronies and former business associates.

It's Uncle Sam and the mail users, meanwhile, who pick up the huge payroll tab.

Our continuing investigation into Klassen's shenanigans has now uncovered a payroll boondoggle of major proportions. We found that Klassen's best friend and many of his former business associates have been allowed to feed at the public trough -- compliments of the postmaster general.

"Lew Walters hocked his watch to lend me money once," Klassen often brags about his oldest friend Now, Walters reaps the rewards of his loyalty, collecting a fat consultant fee. What he does is a mystery to practically everyone at the Postal Service, but he rakes in about $24,000 a year for doing it.

The highest paid consultant, however, was Sydney Baron, a former public relations man at American Can, the firm Klassen headed before coming to the Postal Service. Until his contract was cancelled May 9, Baron collected an incredible $500 a day for his work. And for Baron, the Postal Service defined a day when "a reasonable amount of time is spent on Postal Service matters."

Baron, however, is not the only alumnus of American Can who has drawn a fat paycheck. Some of the American Can crowd have formed sort of a preretirement village, hanging on the postal payroll until they accrue enough time to retire with a pension.

Ellsworth Pell, for example, retired from American Can and is now holding down a non- job at the rate of $35,000 a year. Postal sources claim that Pell never made more than $20,000 a year at American Can.

Harold Larsen, another American Can graduate, was slipped into a do- nothing job by Klassen, too. He was started out as New York regional be removed for inefficiency. Klassen is now taking care of him at $45,000 a year, with an easier job at headquarters.

Ben Bailar and Darrell Brown are two former American Can men now in the $50,000 neighborhood at the Postal Service. Brown's postal section is used by Klassen as a dumping ground for old cronies he is reluctant to fire.

For example, Len Farrell was demoted from assistant postmaster general for labor relations, but continues to draw a higher salary than his successor. Farrell is hanging on for a pension.

Brown's division also took care of Paul Carlin, who was deposed as a senior assistant postmaster general. Carlin stayed on as an aide to Brown, but still collected about $46,000. The man who took over his duties makes about $43,000.

Meanwhile, middle-level postal hands complain that they cannot get the manpower they need because of budget considerations.

Blacks and women in the mail system protest that none of their number has made it to the top levels of management. Only five blacks, for example, have hit the $30,000 plateau at the Postal Service.

One of the highest paid women is Peggy Ford, who is Klassen's personal secretary. Sources contend that her $26,000 job is secure, because she knows "where all the bodies are buried." Her husband, a retired military man, is now on the payroll at more than $30,000.

At the same time, postmasters across the nation are being told to tighten their belts. The Postal Service is in financial trouble and cannot yet ask for another rate increase. Klassen is hoping that economies in the field and a friendly Congress will bail him out.

FOOTNOTE: A postal spokesman told my associate Jack Cloherty that Pell, Carlin and Farrell all did necessary jobs at the Postal Service. The spokesman denied that Brown's area was a "dumping ground" and generally defended Klassen's employment practices.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Although some Republican congressmen are running away from the President, the party itself still hasn't stopped politicking for Richard Nixon. The GOP spent more than $14,000 to send sanitized summaries of the Watergate transcripts to key Nixon supporters throughout the nation ... Despite his hectic schedule, Vice President Gerald Ford still finds time to thank his staff personally for their work. An aide recently received a handwritten birthday note from Ford ... The Federal Energy Administration has pleaded that the United States desperately needs more refineries to over come the gasoline shortage. Yet the Export- Import Bank, heavily supported with U.S. cash, has granted a $22.3 million loan at six per cent interest to build a refinery in the West Indies. To build the same refinery in the United States, an American firm would have to pay 11 per cent interest, plus higher labor and building costs ...

There may be some complaints about the mail, but not from the White House. Postmaster General Ted Klassen told us that he hasn't spoken with President Nixon for well over a year ... The FBI has been doing some public relations work on ex- foreign agent Dusko Popov who claims in a book that he warned the late J. Edgar Hoover about Pearl Harbor. FBI agents dropped by the Publisher, Grosset and Dunlop and tried to convince vice president Bob Markel that Popov was lying. Markel listened politely, then published the book ... Many weeks ago, a Watergate investigator called a Washington dentist and asked for temporary treatment for a bad tooth problem which, he said, he would take care of when he went back home. The investigator recently called back and asked for a permanent fix. It looked like he would be here awhile, he said.

Hunt bound over to Circuit Court

NEW MADRID - - Jimmy Hunt was bound over to Circuit Court for trial on a charge of tampering with a motor vehicle when he waived a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Tuesday before Judge Leo Hedgepeth.

Hunt posted $500 bond and is to appear in Circuit Court on Sept. 9. He is accused of removing a battery from a car belonging to Lennie Johnson without Johnson's permission.

An attorney was appointed to defend Mrs. Deloris Davis, and a preliminary hearing will be set later on a charge of felonious assault with intent to kill by shooting her husband John David with a 20 gauge shotgun.

Murder charges against Lindol Curtis, stemming from the May 7 shooting deaths of Mary Louise Curtis and Susan Gwaltney, were continued to allow Curtis additional time to secure an attorney.

A total of $100 in fines and costs were levied against Beulah Collins and Jessie Collins who were charged with fraudulently obtaining a Missouri resident fishing license and fishing without non-resident fishing permits.

Wiley Bell drew a 90-day jail sentence and $50 fine on charges of littering the streets in Catron and drinking in public.

Dan Tillman forfeited $100 bond and Louis Clark forfeited $50 bond on speeding charges. Others paying fines on speeding charges were Robert Ronald Larmze, $35; Junior Byassee, $26; Charles Shipman, $28; Danny Dale Lefler, $26; and Fred Sickery, $40.

Kentucky golf tournament is June 5

MURRAY, Ky. — A record field of more than 125 ladies from the four-state area around western Kentucky is expected to participate in the seventh annual George Hart Invitational Tournament June 5 at Murray- Calloway Country Club.

Invitations have been sent to lady golfers at 35 clubs in the area, and the number of entries is expected to surpass last year's field of 123 players in the one- day, 18-hole, medal play event.

Mrs. Betty Lowry and Mrs. Elizabeth Slusmeyer are co- chairmen for the tournament, assisted by Mrs. Carol Hibbard and Mrs. Frances Hulse, co- chairman of the club's ladies golf activities.

The $8 entry fee covers the entire day's activities, including a social hour, lunch and unannounced special activities in addition to 18 holes of competitive golf.

Entries and handicaps should be sent to Mrs. Lowry (707 Elm St., Murray, Ky. 42071) not later than May 30. Following the entry deadline, pairings will be made and tee- off times will be sent to the clubs of the ladies from whom entries have been received.

Flighting will be done at the end of the first nine holes of play, and all ties will be decided by mini- max handicap.

The top winners in each of six flights will receive prizes valued at several hundred dollars. The winner of the championship flight also will receive the coveted traveling trophy, presented by Mrs. Lochie Hart of Murray in memory of her husband, the late George Hart.

A prominent civic leader, Hart was mayor of Murray, president of Bank of Murray and an active member of the club.

Another special trophy to be awarded will be the Dorothy Holland Team Trophy, an award donated by Al Lindsey, a Murray jeweler, in memory of his aunt.

The trophy will be presented to the four players from any one club whose aggregate score is the lowest of any similar group participating. Miss Holland was an active member of the club before her death in 1970.

Last year it was won by the Paxton Park team from Paducah -- Wanda Mullinax, Mary Jane Alford, Virginia Davis and Eleanor Griffin -- with an aggregate score of 343.

The defending champion is Mrs. Harriett Jaeger of Jackson, Mo. Mrs. Jaeger, playing in the tournament for the first time, shot an 81 to edge Mrs. Mary Bain of Sikeston, Mo., by a single stroke for the championship Mrs. Alford and Mrs. Hulse, tied for third with 145s.

Previous winners of the championship flight have been: Mrs. Mary Jane Nall of Mayfield, 1968; Mrs. Mary Anderson of Metropolis, Ill., 1969; Mrs. Alford, 1970 and 1972; Mrs. Betty Vowell of Fulton, 1971; and Mrs. Jaeger.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Call me petty, ungracious, whatever -- but I must get this off my mind.

For years I travelled with crummy luggage. Finally I decided to do without a few other things and buy myself some really classy travelling cases, a matched set, even if it took me two years. Which it did.

In the past three months four relatives have asked if they could borrow my luggage. I said yes, like a damned fool, to the first person. Although she took only one piece (around the world), it looked as if it had been kicked at least halfway. Her only comment was, "You know how careless the airlines are."

After that, I decided to say no to everyone who asked. So now they are mad at me. The last sorehead is going on a trip that will cost her $1500. Wouldn't you think she could afford to buy some decent luggage instead of trying to borrow mine? -- The Target

Dear Tar: I know of very few pepope who lend things and keep their friendships intact. Better to say "no" and let somebody else be mad than to say "yes" and be the one who is.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't trust my own judgment anymore. Please put your brains in my head for a few minutes.

I went with Brad for four years. When I say "went with" I mean five evenings a week and sometimes the "evening" lasted till the next morning, if you get what I mean. We are both in our late 20s and have talked about marriage.

Three months ago, Brad began to have headaches. His doctor said he needed a change. He announced bluntly, "I think I need another girl." I nearly died of the shock. Within three weeks he married a blonde from the steno pool at his office. It nearly killed me.

They weren't back from their honeymoon ten days when Brad started to call me, begging me to see him. Yesterday he came to my apartment, cried his eyes out, said he had made a terrible mistake, was getting a divorce and could we pick up where we left off. I asked him if he wanted to marry me. He said, "No. I think we should get reacquainted." Is he crazy? What should I do? -- Undy-Sided

Dear Undy: Yes, he's crazy. And if you take up with him again you are crazy, too.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a needling sense of humor. He doesn't care what he says as long as it gets a laugh. Frequently, he hands me the paper and says, "Well, here's your letter in Ann Landers' column." Today really did it. The letter was from a woman who needed a facelift.

I am three years older than Vic and have always been sensitive about it. I have a good figure, have kept my hair dark (with a little help from the beautician), and my skin has held fairly well. About six months ago, I noticed my neck was getting a little crepey and the pounces under my eyes more noticeable. I find myself wearing sunglasses even when there's no sun.

We're a littled strapped for money but I want a facelift. Is it expensive? Any advice? -- Fifty And Feel It

Dear 50: Don't hunt for bargains. Consult a reputable plastic surgeon whose work you have seen. Get his opinion on what needs to be done and how much it will cost. Then if you can afford it go ahead -- if he believes he can achieve the desired results.

New women's course 'uncomplicates car'

DETROIT, Mich. - To some 75,000 women, a "Phillips" now means more than one of the neighbors and a "crescent" conjures up a different image than the moon over a lake.

The words describe two of the four tools Women on Wheels program graduates have come to recognize and use as easily as eyeliner and lipstick to correct stalled cars... corroded battery terminals and aim headlights.

The "WOW" program, entering its third year, is carried out through Dodge and Chrysler-Plymouth dealers across the country.

"WOW" was designed to uncomplicate the car for women," according to John Farley, service information and planning manager for Chrysler's U.S. Automotive Sales and Service Group.

"It explains the mechanical operation of an automobile, how to recognize serious car trouble and what easy measures the average woman driver can undertake herself if she has a minor problem with her car," says Farley.

"When a lady finishes the WOW sessions, she should be able to administer vital 'first aid' to her car, using just four simple tools: a flat blade screwdriver, a Phillips screwdriver, a crescent wrench and pliers."

The WOW sessions also teach the women to "talk car," says Farley, a vital communications tool when bringing the family motor car in with a service problem.

A limited supply of a newly developed pamphlet describing the WOW program and offering numerous car care and operating tips is available on a first come basis, Farley said. It may be obtained by writing: WOW, P.O. Box 970-A, Detroit, Mich. 48232.

The program is open to all women, not only Chrysler Corp. car owners.

It is conducted in four weekly sessions of two hours each in specially prepared sections of the dealership's service department.

The first class familiarizes the women students with how an auto runs. A car is examined inside and out and from top to bottom, using a hoist, raising the hood and removing the wheels, to provide most of the gals their first intimate view of an automobile's vitals and their workings.

The second session focuses on electrical aspects and the possible diagnostic checkouts if a car won't start, such as battery terminals, spark plug wires, points and coil. What can be done about fuses, small light bulb replacements and minor malfunctions in turn indicators is covered, along with brake and parking lights.

The third session gets into braking and fuel systems. How the brake system functions and how to easily determine when an adjustment or new lining is needed, are explained. Also covered are how to ascertain flooding and what to do about it, and what to do when out of gas.

The fourth session concerns noise identification, safety and handling. The students change a flat tire and learn techniques for driving in snow, rain, on ice and in traffic jams. They learn to identify slipping power steering or fan belt sounds and their importance. Various chassis or suspension noises are demonstrated as to cause and severity.

The average class size is about 15, but dealers will take as few as seven in sparsely populated areas. WOW graduates receive a course book for future reference.

Women interested in taking a WOW course may contact their local Dodge or Chrysler-Plymouth dealer.

Women drivers learn procedures

A Phillips is more than the name of a neighbor to a Women on Wheels program graduate. They learn it is one of four tools to aim headlights or get stalled cars started, among a myriad of other simple car trouble fixes. Above, an instructor goes through the spark plug wiring system in a WOW class. Nearly 75,000 women have completed the WOW sessions in the United States.

Fruits, vegetables mean vitamins

By LAURENCE M. HURSH
National Dairy Council Consultant

The big message in fruits and vegetables is vitamins. Quite a few of the foods in this group are rich in iron as well. Vegetables will "turn you on" whether you cook them or eat them raw. Fresh or canned fruits fit in with everything. Eat at least four servings of fruits and vegetables daily as part of the four food group plan for good health.

Your kitchen can be a dangerous room in your house. Cuts, falls, burns and poisoning -- all these can happen in the kitchen if you're not careful. Keep poisons and medicine somewhere else, out of reach. Prevent burns and cuts by not leaving these risks unattended. And keep your children away from electricity.

Milk is an important food for the elderly. It contains a wide variety of nutrients. If chewing is a problem, milk, alone or with eggs, may be the major source of high quality protein. Calcium in milk may protect against demineralization of bones. Milk fat is sometimes tolerated when other fats cause digestive distress.

Salads can make a wonderful lunch, especially for businessmen and women who have to return to a desk for an afternoon's work. Almost any restaurant menu now offers salads that are almost a complete meal in themselves. Have one with milk as a beverage and you'll avoid that sleepy afternoon feeling that a heavier meal can create.

Good nutrition won't guarantee athletic ability. But it will go a long way to helping your young athlete reach his full potential in sports. Well- balanced meals each day, plus nutritious snacks, are the pattern he should follow with four or more glasses of milk a day and a wide variety of other foods.

Regularly, I suggest that people would feel better if they stopped skipping breakfast. To save arguments in the family, have your breakfast "skippers" try eating breakfast for two or three weeks and let them appraise for themselves whether they do or do not feel better in the morning and accomplish more at school or at work.

The hamburger is said to have been popular in Germany before immigrants brought the idea to the United States. But Americans were the first to put it on a bun. This happened in 1904 at the St. Louis World's Fair, where the ice cream cone also was invented, and iced tea first served.

Book review

THIEVES LIKE US
by Edward Anderson
215 pp.)

THIEVES LIKE US, Edward Anderson's novel, originally published in 1937 and long unavailable, is now returned to print withthe Avon publication, in February, of a paperback edition. Hailed by reviewers upon its initial publication, and called "one of the great forgotten novels of the thirties," by Raymond Chandler, THIEVES LIKE US has attracted advance critical attention in its new edition. The New York Times has called it "a 36- year- old mint specimen of the crime novel, happily recycled into paperback." The novel, the story of three convicts- turned- bank robbers who stage a series of robberies throughout Depression- ridden Oklahoma and West Texas, has also just been made into a United Artists movie. Pauline Kael, writing in the New Yorker, has praised the film and noted its faithfulness to the book, saying "The movie has the ambiance of the novel

Charleston man claims he can control the weather

Persons in Charleston and a 15- mile surrounding area only have two more days to get in on James Edward Allen's ability to control the weather.

After midnight Friday, Allen, 59, is going to "retire" from the weather control business for about six months to a year, or until he receives notice from enough people who believe in his self- claimed power.

Allen claims he can, with his powers, prevent an approaching bad storm from striking within a 15- mile radius of his home near Charleston. Although he won't relate how he does this phenomenal act, he claims it is a fact and that he has convinced his family and some others that he has this power.

When his mother died about 29 years ago, Allen says he inherited her power to control the clouds and break them up. When asked why he inherited this ability, he said he was born on the 13th — an unlucky day — and only a person born on an unlucky day can inherit this power from him, he claims. So far, Allen has not found anyone to whom he can pass the power when he is gone.

Sikeston is right on the outskirts of Allen's self-claimed radiusm of control. He claims that as storms approach he can make them break up and skirt 15 miles around Charleston. He has weaker power over another five miles, making a total radius of 20 miles.

James Edward Allen

He claims to have diverted many tornatoes and bad storms. In relating one incident which occurred about 20 years ago, he said he knew a tornado was going to strike Cape Girardeau and do considerable damage, so he left his home and traveled between Benton and Cape Girardeau to divert the storm. He claims that he succeeded by making the storm miss Cape Girardeau, although it hit Jackson.

Allen, who was born in Poplar Bluff and grew up in the New Madrid, Matthews and Charleston areas, lives about four miles northwest of Charleston on a farm.

He invites people to come and watch him perform his weather control act, but says all anyone will see is him looking up at the clouds, and then see the clouds breaking up and going around to either side.

"What I have to say I say to myself," Allen said, adding he can't tell anyone what that is.

Allen would like people who believe in his power to write him at P.O. Box 326, Charleston, Mo. 63834. He will continue with his control powers until May 31. After that, he is retiring until he knows whether enough people believe in his ability and want him to continue or protect their property.

No attempt has been made to prove or disprove the validity of Allen's claim, so the reader must in this case make his own decision.

Sales tax committee presents campaign plan

MALDEN — The City Council Tuesday night voted to retain Metropolitan Insurance Co. to provide hospitalization insurance coverage for city employes. The decision was made after the council heard a report from the insurance committee.

The sales tax committee presented a program to be used during the next two weeks in the campaign to secure a one-cent sales tax for the city. The council also agreed to spend $50 for advertising.

Dick Beall, Chamber of Commerce manager, presented a check for $325 to be applied toward the purchase price of a new ambulance. This amount was collected from the use of the present ambulance in the last two weeks.

An ordinance was passed to erect two stop signs at the intersection of Laclede and Rogers Streets.

The two property owners of a gravel road along the railroad tracks between Laclede and Main Streets asked the city not to put any more gravel on the road or do further grading as they are trying to close the road to prevent racing.

The council agreed to abide by the request since the road is privately owned and has never been turned over to the city.

Fulbright career nears end

WASHINGTON (AP) — James William Fulbright, an international-minded senator from insular Arkansas, devoted much of his now-ending legislative career to foreign affairs and did not hesitate to let his views be known.

Three presidents—Democrats John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson and Republican Richard M. Nixon—felt the sting of criticism he delivered as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for an unprecedented 15 years.

Fulbright, 69, became a lame duck Tuesday when Gov. Dale Bumpers defeated him soundly in the Arkansas Senate primary.

His likely successor as committee chairman will be 74-year-old John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., a consistent supporter of Nixon administration military budgets and a backer of foreign aid since the Truman days.

Fulbright's relations with American presidents were more tempestuous.

Truman dismissed Fulbright as an "overeducated Oxford S.O.B." when the then-Senate freshman proposed that the president resign after the Republicans captured control of Congress in 1946.

Early in the Kennedy administration, Fulbright pleaded in vain against U.S. sponsorship of the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion by anti-Castro Cuban refugees.

He remained voted in favor of the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution that spurred major American involvement in the Vietnam war, but said later he regretted that vote, which he said was based on false information. During the late 1960s he was an increasingly outspoken critic of the American role in Vietnam.

Nixon's Vietnamization policy also drew Fulbright's wrath. With the Vietnam experience in the background, Fulbright became the Senate's most influential advocate of limiting U.S. commitments abroad and curtailing foreign aid.

Fulbright always sought a larger voice in foreign affairs from the Senate beyond the explicit constitutional duty to advise and consent to treaties.

He entered the Senate after education at the University of Arkansas, which he headed as president for three years; as a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford.

Washington report

Progress made on education legislation

By STUART SYMINGTON
U.S. Senator—Missouri

The Senate has passed a comprehensive bill charting the Federall course in the next four years for assistance to education, primarily at the elementary and secondary levels.

The bill extends through 1978 all programs authorized by the Elementary and Secondar Education Act of 1965, including assistance to schools for the education of disadvantaged children, for school library resources, for bilingual education, and for supplementary education services, such as guidance and counseling.

This legislation updates the formula under which funds for educationally deprived children are distributed. In order also to simplify administration and give greater leeway to state and local school officials in the use of federal money, a provision is included for consolidation of several programs.

A new program is authorized to strengthen reading skills in the elementary grades with funding for reading improvement demonstration projects, special emphasis projects, reading training on public television, and reading training grants to colleges and universities.

The bill also would continue the impact aid program, which authorizes assistance to school districts for the education of students whose parents live and/or work on federal property to compensate those districts at least in part in lieu of taxes for the education of the Federally connected students.

While focusing on better education of youth, the Senate bill does not overlook the needs of those adults who have not obtained the minimum of a high school diploma. It would extend the provisions of the Adult Education Act of 1966, under which some 6,000 Missourians last year received their high school equivalency certificates.

The Federal commitment to special education for the handicapped is also reaffirmed. Because of the higher cost of education for the handicapped, the Federal government shares this expense with states and local communities. As passed by the Senate, the legislation would provide special research funds and support graduate training programs, demonstration projects, and grants- in- aid to encourage the movement of educational services to handicapped children.

Senate- approved provisions in this legislation would require that all alternatives be exhausted before busing is implemented. It also directs that busing not cross school district lines unless it is determined that those lines were drawn or maintained for the purpose of segregation; that a student not be bused further than the school next closest to his home unless the courts find this is constitutionally required; and affirms the authority of the judicial system to enforce the Constitution.

This legislation now must go to a House- Senate conference to work out the differences between the Senate version and a bill passed earlier by the House of Representatives.

While I do not advocate that the major funding for schools come from the national government, Federal funds can and should assist states and localities in special and innovative educational programs.

Penney Reports Potential Safety Problem On Bicycles Manufactured In Austria

JCPenney has reported a potential safety problem involving the front fork of approximately 110,000 bicycles manufactured in Austria by Juniorwerke Ing Franz Weiss.

Manager G. R. Bowen of the Penney store at Sikeston, Mo. said the problem may be present on 10-speed men's JCPenney bicycles which were sold through stores and catalogs starting in late 1972.

Mr. Bowen pointed out that the problem involves only bicycles at a $69.95 retail, yellow in color, and bikes at an $84.95 retail red in color. Only bikes sold prior to December 1973 are affected. These bikes will have a "made in Austria" decal affixed to the post which supports the seat. Bicycles with chrome-plated forks do not present any problem, he said.

The Penney manager has urged customers who determine that they have bicycles with the potential fork problem to stop riding them immediately. Customers should return the bicycles for free fork replacement either to the nearest Penney store selling bicycles or to the in-store catalog sales center from which the individual bicycle was purchased. Catalog customers who purchased by mail should contact the Customer Service Section at the nearest Penney Catalog DistributionCenter in either Atlanta, Ga., or Milwaukee, Wis.

Letters to the Editor

The Editor
Washington Post
1150 15th Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C. 20005

Dear Editor:

You recently received from United Features Syndicate a column by Jack Anderson that contains so many inaccuracies and draws so many wrong conclusions that I feel compelled to respond.

The column begins with a false note -- a comment that the mails have been moving slower since the Postal Service came into being three years ago.

This is not true. Our own tests and those of the General Accounting Office and various newspapers have indicated a marked improvement in mail service within the past year or so.

Mr. Anderson erroneously states that since 1971 "about half" of United States Postal Service contracts have been awarded on a non- competitive basis.

This is not true. Data for the only full year of procurement on record (Fiscal Year 1973) shows that only 24.8 per cent of Postal Service contracts were sole source, and justification was made for going sole source in each case.

Mr. Anderson contends that there were overruns totaling "an extra estimated $100 million" on Postal Service contracts, including $60 million to "eleven favored companies."

We do not know the source of these figures and cannot reconcile them, but cost overruns of this magnitude have not occurred.

Of 26 specific contracts about which inquiry was made by Mr. Anderson's staff, 11 were awarded before the Postal Service took over operation of the old Post Office Department on July 1, 1971. There were cost overruns on four of the contracts, two of which pre- dated the Postal Service. The total amount of the overruns was $9.7 million -- of which $8.5 million was on old Post Office Department contracts.

Mr. Anderson's incidental qualifier that "some of the additional costs were legitimate, with needed work being done for the extra money" does little to correct the false impression he has already created.

Adding extra work to initial contracts has been by far the principal reason for cost growth. So long as the Postal Service is involved in research and development efforts involving breakthroughs in the state - of - the - art, as is the case with some of the contracts cited by Mr. Anderson, there will continue to be some degree of costs exceeding the original contracted price.

The United States Postal Service is the largest civilian branch of the Federal Government and one of the biggest businesses in the world. It has an annual budget of more than $10 billion, a work force of over 700,000 employees and it handles 90 billion pieces of mail a year.

The overwhelming bulk of that mail is now sorted manually, as it has been since the founding of the republic. We are engaged in a massive research and development effort to bring sophisticated mechanization to the Postal Service. In the early stages of this effort we will have to take some risks as we plow new ground.

Mr. Anderson's column specifically mentions contracts the Postal Service awarded to sevearl companies for development of improved facer- cancelers, air cullers, optical character readers, multi- position letter sorters, and bulk mail facilities.

The facts involving these contracts are:

1) Improved Facer-Canceler — A contract was awarded in 1968 to National Cash Register as a result of competitive procurement, for development of an improved facing and canceling machine. As a result of the contract, three advanced development models of facer canceler equipment were built and are presently in operation. Unit 1 is located in the Northern Virginia facility at Merrifield, Unit 2 is located at the Postal Laboratory in Rockville, Md., as part of an experimental integrated mail preparation system, and Unit 3 is under test at the St. Petersburg, Fla., plant of Electronic Communications, Inc., a subsidiary of NCR.

Due to the initial success of these units, the Postal Service in 1972 went into a two- phased program for further development of facer- canceler equipment. There were 12 service test models produced and nine of these were placed into service and are still being tested prior to production of 14 later models. The contractor has been on a stop-work order since September of 1973. The Postal Service's Research and Engineering Department is evaluating whether to continue this program or develop other alternatives.

This delay in development of the new facer- canceler required that the Postal Service seek other sources to fill immediate needs for facer cancelers. Therefore, in December, 1973, we purchased 180 Mark II facer - cancelers from Pitney- Bowes to augment the approximately 700 machines of this model in service. Deliveries are to commence in September, 1974.

2) Air Cullers -- The Postal Service awarded a competitive contract in 1968 to the Burroughs Corporation for development of culling equipment. This work led to the concept of an air culler and two machines were produced and tested.

From the early results of the testing of these two machines, it was determined in 1972 to procure 14 additional air cullers for further testing and evaluation in a live mail environment and a data- package which would be used in future competitive procurements. All 14 machines under this contract have been produced. Seven have not been shipped to post offices until the results are evaluated of those air cullers now being field tested as part of a mail preparation line, rather than as a stand- alone unit. This development work has not yet produced the desired results.

3) Optical Character Readers -- The initial undertaking for development of the first- generation optical character reader was awarded competitively to Philco Corporation in 1960, for approximately a half- million dollars. This research and development effort continued over the years, resulting in expenditure of a total of about $17 million. The final result was deployment of the first 10 OCR-I's in post offices. Ten more OCR-I's were purchased from Philco- Ford Corporation in 1969 for approximately $8 million. These 20 OCR-I's are located in 13 cities and are used daily in the processing of mail.

In 1969, Philco- Ford was awarded a contract for the development of the second generation of optical character reader -- OCR-II – to fill the time gap in the generation of OCR equipment until the Postal Service Advanced OCR program could produce an engineering model. The OCR II installed in Boston was accepted in March, 1972. The final cost of this equipment and related services was approximately $6 million.

At no time was there any intent to await the results of the Philco- Ford development of the OCR before proceeding with undertaking an Advanced OCR which was developed by IBM and is now in use in New York City.

The OCR I in Boston can only process outgoing mail but is used an average of seven (7) hours per day, six (6) days per week. The average sorting rate is 30,000 pieces per hour. The OCR II, with more capability, averages 11-15 hours per day, depending on volume of mail available, five days a week and 33,000 pieces per hour, outgoing primary and secondary mail.

The two OCR I's in New York average 19.2 hours of operation per day. The Advanced OCR (AOCR), made by IBM, operates an average of 20 hours per day, six (6) days a week, handling 59,000 pieces per hour.

4) Multi- Position Letter Sorting Machines -- In July, 1971, the Maxson Electonics Corporation was awarded a competitive fixed- price contract to produce letter sorting machines. This was done as an effort by the Postal Service to break away from the single source that had previously produced most letter sorting machines. During the period of performance, the Maxson Corporation received progress payments amounting to $5.04 million. Due to financial difficulties, the Corporsation was unable to complete the contract and it was terminated for default on February 23, 1973. The defaulted contract is now the subject of litigation between the contractor and the Postal Service. The Postal Service has contracted with another company to complete the project. All of the money paid to Maxson will result in workable machines.

5) Bulk Mail Facilities -- The contract cost plus the contingencies for the New York Bulk and Foreign Mail Facility will total approximately $155 million. Contrary to Mr. Anderson's allegation, there have been no cost overruns.

As of January 1, 1974, actual expenditures for the New York Bulk Mail Center have not exceeded estimated costs. Based on current conditions, we do not anticipate any overrun.

On the other 20 bulk mail centers, we have done cost- to-completion estimates as of January 1 which indicate that the national bulk mail system will be completed within the original estimate.

It should be further clarified that the company identified by Mr. Anderson as the builder was, in fact, the architect- engineer.

Mr. Anderson quotes from a memorandum distributed to the top staff of the Postal Service in May of 1972, which was critical of some procurement practices that had long existed. What he does not say is that the same memorandum, issued by the Deputy Postmaster General, designated a headquarters committee to take action to improve purchasing and contracting procedures. The Committee's final report, dated August 21, 1972 concluded: "As a result of the activity of this committee, several improvements have already occurred, namely better communications between requiring and contracting offices, more complete statements of work, and careful justification of requirements."

What Mr. Anderson has done is to take a number of contracts and through innuendo, half- truth and misinformation, use them to imply mismanagement by the Board of Governors and the present management.

I believe the public should be apprised of the facts, and that is the purpose of this letter.

Sincerely yours.
E. T. Klassen
Postmaster General
Washington, D.C. 20260

EDITORS: Following is Jack Anderson's answer to postmaster General Klassen's letter:

Like a postman dodging a neighborhood dog, Postmaster General E. T. Klassen tries to refute our documented charges by evasive action.

We held up our story 10 days, as Klassen well knows, to permit the Postal Service to respond to our charges. We considered this a reasonable time for its $3.2 million- a- year public relations apparatus to assemble its alibis.

Although we never received the detailed reply which Klassen is now peddling, we spoke to postal officials throughout our investigation and carefully checked the facts they gave us. Most of our information, indeed, came from the Postal Service's own files.

First of all, Klassen disputes our comment that the mails are slower. The readers are perhaps the best judges as to whether their mail service has improved.

Of course, Klassen doesn't challenge the charge that postal rates have gone up. The price of mailing letters has zoomed an incredible 66 per cent since the Klassen crew took over in 1971. During the same period, 900 small post offices have been closed and afternoon mail pick- ups have stopped in many areas.

Klassen uses bureaucratic sleight- of- hand to attack our statement that "about half" of the postal contracts have been awarded on a noncompetitive basis since 1971. To reduce the figure to 24.8 per cent, he includes all the work that the Postal Service contracted with other government agencies. Obviously, we referred in our story only to the contracts with commercial firms.

But lest there be any doubt, we are happy to cite the exact, confidential figures from the Postal Service files. In the 1973 fiscal year, the Postal Service awarded 623 contracts over $5,000 in value. Of these, 244 went to other government agencies and, therefore, have no part in our story. Only 111 contracts were formally advertised for competitive bid. Another 84 contracts were negotiated, with some price or design competition. But 145 contracts were awarded without bids to single contractors. The remaining 39 contracts can't be nailed down.

In 1971 and 1972, the figures are even more unfavorable to the Postal Service. We were charitable. in other words, when we stated that "about half" of the contracts had been awarded without competition.

Klassen professes to be puzzled about the source of our figures on cost overruns. We are happy to enlighten him. The figures came straght out of his own files. If he has any doubt about this, we will be happy to furnish him with a copy of his own computer printouts listing the sole- source contracts complete with cost overruns.

In his recitation of the "facts" concerning individual contracts, Klassen does little but confirm our story. He admits that delays in the development of a new facer- canceler "required that the Postal Service seek other sources to fill immediate needs for facer- cancelers." This is what we had reported.

He admits, as we had said, that the work on new air cullers "has not produced the desired results." He also confirms the details of our reporting on the Maxson contract.

He disputes our charge that the expensive new optical character readers in Boston and New York run no more than a few hours a day but qualifies his statement by adding, "depending on the volume of mail available." That is the point. There is seldom enough mail available to run these machines more than a few hours a day, a fact which was confirmed by one of Klassen's own spokesmen before our story was written.

The Postal Service has invested $17 million in these machines only to find that they may not have a post office which generated enough mail for them to be used efficiently.

Indeed, Klassen's heralded modernization and mechanization program hasn't produced a single new machine that can yet be used on a national basis. The Pitney -Bowes machine, which he has been obliged to purchase in place of the fancy new machine he wanted, dates back to the 1950s.

Klassen's statement that "there are no cost overruns" in the Bulk Mail project is preposterous. The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee estimates that the project will cost at least $1 billion. The Postal Service estimated the cost at $900 million.

At the Secaucus project alone, the overruns were rampant. Since the Postal Service bought swampland to build on, additional costs were incurred when the pilings for the building had to be sunk deeper than expected. Then the pilings struck methane gas. The smell was overwhelming and the gas dangerous, so the field had to be drained. More overruns.

The Postal Service ingeniously avoids calling these "overruns" by what contractors call the "depreciation shell game." They write off depreciation on equipment not being used because of project delays and use the figures to offset additional cost. Another trick used to avoid admitting "overruns" is entering into open -ended contracts which can be padded without embrassing comparsion to the origianl cost estimates.

We made one minor error, which we are pleased to correct. We identified Lester B. Knight incorrectly as a builder. Klassen more accurately describes him as an architect -engineer. But what Klassen failed to mention is that this contractor, who has benefitted from doing business with the Postal Service, is a close personal friend of Klassen's.

The Postmaster General criticizes us for not citing a portion of a memo, which said the Postal Service would try to do something about sole -source contracts. The committee report, Klassen notes, cited several improvements.

Unfortunately, we didn't have access to the final report although we tried for ten days to get it from the Postal Service. The fact remains that the report still hasn't been implemented.

Klassen's defense, in brief, is constructed on a tumbling house of cards. We will present our evidence to the Senate Investigations Committee. It will be interesting to see whether Klassen will join us in urging a full investigation.

Bond, legislature argue over funding local governments

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The controversial tax on household goods has been repealed but a battle appears likely between the governor and legislative leaders over whether the state will reimburse political subdivisions for the lost revenue.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond said Tuesday when he signed the repealer that he didn't intend to include in his 1975-76 budget requests any state money to reimburse cities, counties school districts, police districts and fire protection districts.

Taking money from the state treasury for the reimbursement, Bond said, would "ensure a statewide tax increase by 1976."

However, the governor emphasized he supported the repeal, but felt the state didn't have enough money to pay for it.

The controversy over how to fund the repealer caused lengthy debate on the House and Senate and the two houses finally agreed to have the state make the reimbursement by having the political subdivisions report to the state Tax Commission how much revenue they will lose.

The estimates on the loss run between $8 million and $14 million a year.

Bond said a 1973 law providing uniform assessment of property at 33 1-3 per cent of true cash value and a new law tightening up on auto tax collections would help make up the loss to political subdivisions.

The sponsor of the repealer, Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, said he would write the governor saying Bond has a "legal and moral" obligation to include the money in his budget because "that's what the bill says and he signed it in that form."

If the governor does not include it in his budget, Cason said, he would ask the Senate Appropriations Committee to include it. Bond still could eliminate the money through a veto.

However, an appropriations veto, Cason said, would be an attempt to amend the law through an appropriations bill, which is unconstitutional.

If the legislature goes ahead and appropriates the money for the reimbursement, Bond said, he would not "look upon it with any great deal of enthusiasm," but he wouldn't say whether he would veto it.

Cason said the items Bond mentioned as giving more revenue to political subdivisions "would just keep up with inflationary trends."

The household goods tax, criticized as unfair because assessors don't dispute a person's claim about the value of his household property, will be repealed effective next Jan. 1. The repeal was authorized by the voters in 1972.

The tax applied to furniture, clothing, jewelry and other household property.

Bond also signed a bill to increase workmen's compensation benefits from $70 to $95 a week for total disability and from $65 to $75 a week for partial but permanent disability. The bill, effective Aug. 13, sets up a legislative committee to study workmen's compensation laws and recommend changes.

The new law covers all public employes. It applies to all employers of more than five workers. Exempted will be employers of farm workers or domestic servants if the employers have payrolls of less than $2,500 a year.

The governor now has signed 79 bills and vetoed 10. He has until June 29 to act on 48 others, although an aide to the governor said he would act on all the bills by June 21.

Bond also signed bills to:

—Change from a misdemeanor to a felony, with up to a $10,000 fine and 2-5 years in prison, for willful failure to file a sales or income tax return to fail to pay the taxes.

—Allow the revenue director to provide confidential information to the Multistate Tax Commission, allow Missouri to participate in joint audits of firms doing business in the state and allows commission rules to apply to any tax levied in the state.

SeMo stars

Pat McClarty, who battled his way into a starting position with the Southeast Missouri State University baseball team this spring after transferring from Memphis State University, finished as the Indians RBI leader with 20.

The former Missouri high school all state star from Lilbourn started out the season with a red hot bat and led the team in hitting most of the campaign and finished with a .316 mark.

Rand Amick of Illmo- Scott City led SEMO in hitting with a .382 mark, paced the team with the top number of at bats with 102, led the teams in runs with 22, hits with 39 and doubles with six. He is a freshman.

Senior Mike Dambach of Lilbourn was second on the team in runs scored with 20 and drew 24 walks, a team record.

Rick Blankenship of Sikeston fashioned a 4-3 season record for the Trible, posting a 3.09 ERA, allowing 12 runs and 33 hits during his 35 innings of work.

The Tribe finished the season with the schools best victory record ever. SeMo finished with a 17-13 mark.

Trotline questions

JEFFERSON CITY — A trotline often is called a "troutline" in Missouri, though it almost never takes a trout, but whatever it is called, it is a problem to those who enforce wildlife regulations -- and to those who fish under the regulations.

Basically, a trotline is a length of line from which are suspended no more than 33 hooks, staged not less than two feet apart and trotlines may not be attached together to extend the hook total.

Oddly, the largest trout ever taken on a hook in Missouri, was taken on a trotline ("troutline"). It was a 15 pound, six ounce fish taken in 1971 in Lake Taneycomo.

Perhaps the most widely asked question about trotlines currently is whether resident fishermen 70 or over, who can sportfish free, can use them without a permit.

The answer is that such fishermen need a permit for a trotline. Only gig of pole and line methods are free.

Another question is whether the person whose name and address is on the required tag on the trotline needs to be present when the line is run or can anyone run the line legally.

The answer is that the person must be present, though he can have help if the help is properly licensed. The present regulation is worded to say that labels must bear the name and address of the "person using such equipment."

Trotliners asked for that wording since they were plagued with strangers swiping fish from their lines and had no legal recourse.

Contrary to one popular misconception, it is legal to use bluegill and other sunfish (but not crappie) as trotline bait. No game fish, as defined in the Wildlife Code, may be used as bait on a trotline.

No person may fish with more than 33 hooks, so a man pole and line fishing with a single hook could only have 32 hooks on his trotline.

And trotlines must be run at least once every 24 hours. Trotlines and limb or bank lines sometimes are abandoned and can become traps,either for wildlife or for boaters.

There have been many reports of herons or other birds being hooked by a baited hook, exposed when the water went down. Those same hooks are a hazard to boaters, especially on rivers.

CHS names new coaches

Harv Welch has been named the head football coach at Caruthersville high school and Dave Fleer has been selected as his assistant.

Welch has coached at St. James high the past two seasons, recording a 11-9 record.

CHS will open its 1974 season against Doniphan.

BOSTON (AP) — Slugging outfielder Bernie Carbo of the Boston Red Sox is the winner of the American League's weekly Star Parade Award.

Carbo was honored Tuesday for his performances in helping the Red Sox into the East Division lead. He had 13 hits, including two homers, in 29 times at bat, a .448 average. He also drove in 10 runs, two which won games.

Trotlines, one of Missouri's favorite fishing methods, also create a lot of questions. A trotline is a length of line from which are suspended no more than 33 hooks staged not less than two feet apart.

Dodgers club Cards, 11-5

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If the Los Angeles Dodgers don't set team West Coast records for offense, Manager Walter Alston thinks he may miss his guess.

The 62-year-old Alston watched his National League club pound out 20 hits in an 11-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night and afterward acknowledged it has such potential.

"I guess it's the best we've ever had," he conceded of an attack featuring two home runs, two doubles and 16 singles.

In further reference to an avalanche that boosted Dodger scoring to 281 runs in 49 games, Alston quipped wryly, "I'll settle for that many in the next 50 games."

Ken McMullen and Joe Ferguson, who smacked two-run homers, were leaders of an offense engulfing St. Louis despite Reggie Smith's three-run homer.

Ron Cey chipped in four singles to the steady barrage and Bill Buckner, Bill Russell and Steve Garvey had three hits each.

"In the last five or six games the starting pitching hasn't been that good," Alston observed, "but maybe by the time we cool off with the bats it'll be better."

The Dodger rampage, slowed Monday during a 7-2 loss to the Cards, resumed Tuesday night at the expense of ex-Los Angeles bonus pitcher Alan Foster, 1-5, and four successors.

Two runners were lost on attempted stolen bases before Cey singled in the second and rode home on McMullen's second home run.

An inning later Russell and Willie Crawford singled around a strikeout and Ferguson dispatched a Foster fast ball for a 5-0 lead after Crawford was out stealing and Garvey singled Russell home.

Three more runs established an 8-2 Los Angeles cushion in the next inning, but starting pitcher Don Sutton was raked by Smith's homer in the fifth and gave way to knuckle baller Charlie Hough, 5-1.

"I just put two or three balls in the wrong place," said the slim Sutton, who left with his team ahead 8-5.

"Charlie's pitched well," noted Alston in respect to Hough, who stopped the Cards on one hit over 2 1-3 innings before Mike Marshall mopped up.

"At the end of last year, in the winter and during spring training he indicated he could throw the knuckleball over the plate," the Dodger manager added.

Left-hander Tommy John, 71, is scheduled to pitch for the Dodgers tonight against righthander Sonny Sieberg, 4-3, in the windup to a three-game series.

Likely to miss the game is Jim Wynn, who was also idled Tuesday night by a sore right elbow. "They didn't need me anyway," he said.

NEW YORK — The Portland Trail Blazers officially named Bill Walton, UCLA's three-time All-American, as the No. 1 pick in the National Basketball Association draft.

NEW ORLEANS — The National Basketball Association's New Orleans franchise named Scotty Robertson of Louisiana Tech as its head coach.

NJC title game set

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Undefeated Meramec of St. Louis, Mo., faces Miami Dade North of Florida tonight in the championship bracket of the National Junior College Baseball Tournament.

A victory by the Floridians, now 3-1, would force a second game Thursday night to decide the title of the annual double -elimination meet.

Meramec kept its winning streak intact with a 5-2 victory over Anne Arundel of Maryland Tuesday night while Miami Dade North crushed top-ranked San Jacinto of Texas 19-10. It was the second loss for each of the losers. Miami right fielder Steve Cook led his team with a tourney-record three home runs in three trips to the plate to collect five RBIs.

Shortstop Steve Viefhaus set a tourney record with his fourth homer, a solo shot in the fifth inning.

Meramec pushed across two runs in the second inning and another in the third on a triple by John Schilling and an infield grounder, and added one for insurance in the ninth on a walk, sacrifice bunt and a single.

Anne Arundel scored in the first inning on a bases-loaded ground ball and in the ninth on three singles.

Pistons draft MU's Eberhard

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Eleven basketball players from Big Eight schools, led by forwards Al Eberhard of Missouri and Scott Wedman of Colorado who went in the first round, have been selected by the National Basketball Association's 18 teams.

Eberhard was taken by the Detroit Pistons, Wedman by the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

Other Big Eight choices and the rounds in which they were selected:

Robert Wilson, Iowa State forward, third, by Houston; Gary Link, Missouri forward, sixth, by Buffalo; Larry Williams, Kansas State forward, sixth, Milwaukee; Kevin Fitzgerald, Oklahoma forwardguard, seventh, Houston; Oklahoma forward Tom Holland, eighth, Phoenix; Colorado guard Lee Haven, ninth, Portland; Oklahoma forward Ted Evans, ninth, Phoenix; Kansas State guard Lon Kruger, ninth, Atlanta; Nebraska forward Brendy Lee, tenth, Atlanta.

Football dropped

Gideon became the second school in Southeast Missouri to drop football from its athletic program. The Bulldog girdiron teams have been rather easy prey of other teams in the district.

The first school to announce its dropping of football was Delta C-7 of Deering last season.

The loss of Gideon has left the Bootheel division of the Southeast Missouri football league with only three teams. Illmo- Scott City has been the dominating team of the league for years. The other teams remaining are South Pemiscot of Steele and Doniphan, who only picked up the sport last season.

Gideon's decision to drop the sport was based on the fact that only about a half dozen boys expressed interest in playing at a recent signup.

Pan American to offer special travel plans

CHICAGO -- Pan American World Airways will offer three special plans this summer to allow travelers the maximum flexibility to arrange their itineraries both before and during their European vacation.

The program, called "Europe on a Pass," features guaranteed accommodations in high quality hotels in 87 European cities at $12.50 per person per night, double occupancy, or $17.50 for a single room. The rates include rooms with private bath (or shower), service charges and taxes and continental breakfasts.

The Eurotelpass must be obtained before departure. Reservations at participating hotels can be made in advance, but all that is necessary is that the passenger check into the hotel by 3 p.m. The program will be in effect through Sept. 30.

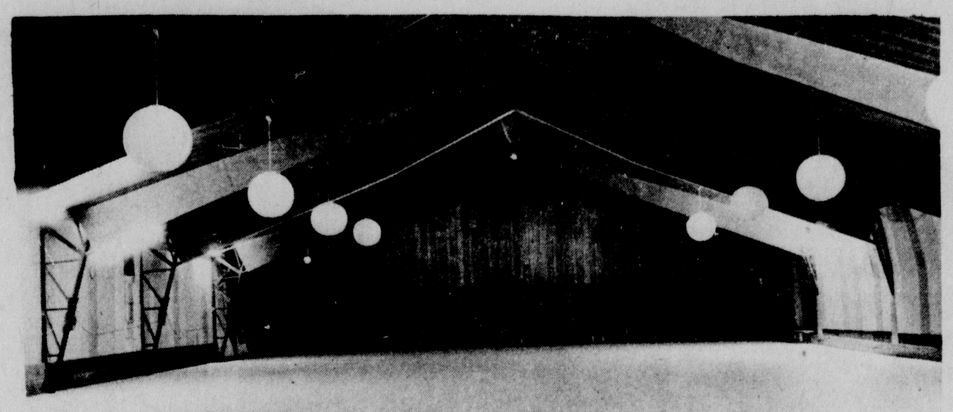
The participating hotels are located in Austria, Belgium, England, France, Germany, Gibraltar, Italy, Lebanon, Luxemburg, Morocco, The Netherlands, Portugal, Scotland, Spain, Switzerland and Wales.

For every four Eurotelpasses purchased, recipients receive a Eurotourpass good for sightseeing tours in such cities as Amsterdam, Barcelona, Florence, Frankfurt, Lisbon, London, Madrid, Milan, Naples, Paris, Rome, Seville, Venice and Vienna.

Also part of the program is the Eurodrivepass, which offers low weekly rates for self-drive rental cars in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Lebanon, Morocco, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

And for those who would prefer to travel by train in Europe, Eurailpass rates vary from $150 for 21 days of first class travel to $300 for three months of travel. Special rates also for eight days of second class travel to $115 for one month of first class travel.

Further information is given in Pan Am's "Europe on a Pass" brochure, available from Pan Am offices and travel agents in the Midwest and Canada.



Roller rink will be remodeled

Sikeston Roller Rink, 840 Anderson St., will undergo remodeling this summer. The building will get a new floor and air conditioning and a partition will be removed.

Owner explains remodeling plans

Sikeston Roller Rink, 840 Anderson St., will undergo remodeling this summer, according to owner Zural Satterfield of Dexter Route Two.

Satterfield said a solid plastic floor will be laid over the building's present floor to deaden the sound of the skates. The building will be completely air conditioned.

A partition will be removed to open the skating area to 70 feet by 150 feet.

In addition to the building improvements, Satterfield said, higher quality skates will be offered.

The improvements are expected to be completed by early fall. The rink will remain open for business while the remodeling is in progress, Satterfield said.

Shoe firm assists scouting program

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Special assistance to the Southeast Missouri Council of Boy Scouts of America has been extended by Brown Shoe Co., through its Brown Group, Inc. Charitable Trust, with its annual check.

Brown Shoe Co. operates plants in Bernie, Charleston, Piedmont, Caruthersville, Potosi and Ironton, all of which are located within the Southeast Missouri Council area. The company encourages its personnel to be active in the Boy Scout program and over the years many plant managers have been active on the local and council level. The management of Brown Shoe Co. has often voiced the company's support of the ideals, goals, programs and each boy who is active in the scout program.

The support of scouting by corporate groups gives additional leadership to the financial program, according to Southeast Missouri Council officials, who said corporate financial and moral support is needed to expand scouting programs to accomodate the increasing number of boys and make scouting attractive to all age groups.

'Market rally must prove self'

The rally of Friday, May 24 must prove itself, central region stock market analysts emphasize.

The rally was based, they note, on a belief that short term interest rates are peaking.

A further increase in the cost of short term money, however, could trigger a series of down markets; and margin calls could result, with an ensuing selling climax.

Such an event, it is stressed, could signal a market turn. For if there are bargains now, there indeed would be more and better bargains after a selling climax than before.

Aggressive investors, of course, are continually searching for "current" buys and "future" buys. Argus Research Corp. scrutinizes the aluminum industry currently, though defers making recommendations at this time.

"Prices of the common stocks of primary aluminum smelting companies dropped sharply on news that the Jamaican government proposes to significantly raise bauxite mining taxes and royalties.

Too many variables remain unresolved to permit a "fine tuned" estimate of the real impact of this proposal on the share earnings of individual aluminum companies:

1. Will other bauxite producers --- Australia, Haiti, Guyana -- follow suit or not? 2. What will be the U. S. and Canadian federal tax treatment of such added costs? 3. Will the market truly absorb a pass-through of the higher costs, as we believe it will? ...

Eagleton attacks inadequate postal service in Missouri

WASHINGTON — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., has confronted Postmaster General E. T. Klassen with reports of slow and reduced postal service in Missouri.

During an appropriations subcommittee hearing May 23 to oversee the postal service, Eagleton cited results of a study completed by his office which showed that there was no difference between the speed of air mail and first class letters when sent to various cities in Missouri.

"Shouldn't the public be made aware of exactly what they are getting for their air mail money?" Eagleton said.

A postal service representative replied that the study did reveal a problem. He said air mail should get next day delivery while first class mail should get second day delivery, then added, "We will check into why this is not happening."

Eagleton also inquired into reports that mid- day pickup and deliveries have been eliminated from several rural areas in Missouri, including Huntsville, Fulton, Birch Tree, Stover, Keytesville, Licking, Brunswick, Mexico, Camdenton, Glasgow, Moberly and Salisbury.

Eagleton brought up the speed of first class delivery and mentioned that one problem route was between Joplin and St. Louis.

"It took one piece of mail 119 hours to travel from Joplin to St. Louis -- a distance of approximately 250 miles," Eagleton said. "That is a pace of a little less than two miles an hour. As I recall, most people walk at approximately three miles an hour."

Eagleton reported that only 88 per cent of the letters in his study reached their destinations within the postal service's own delivery standards. The postal service claimed that 95 per cent- plus reach destinations within the standards.

Earlier, in a letter to Walter Carson, senior representative of the Government Relations Department of the U.S. Postal Service, Eagleton said he was disappointed with the responses the Postal Service was giving constituent complaints.

"Nowhere in your responses do you justify to these people the reasons they must pay higher rates for decreased services," Eagleton said.

In answer to the letter, Carson apologized for the inadequate responses and said, "Every attempt will be made to direct our responses to the points raised in your constituents' mail."

Eagleton said he intended to follow these matters closely to be sure Missourians get the service they are entitled to.

What's the law?

By JACK STRAUSS, LL. B.

Herbie normally went over his face twice while shaving if any beard was left after the first time. While on vacation, however, he decided to lessen the ordeal by standing further and further away from his razor. The result? By the time his vacation was over, he had grown what he considered to be rather a handsome beard.

His boss, however, didn't share his enthusiasm. In fact, citing company policy, his boss told him that unless he shaved it off, he couldn't keep his job.

"Your not eligible," he was told. "You voluntarily left your employment without good cause."

"What do you mean it wasn't with good cause," responded Herbie. "The Constitution gives every man the right to wear a beard. And if a beard is good enough for the Constitution, saving mine was good enough reason to leave my job."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit bearded Herbie to collect unemployment benefits?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a beard for a man is an expression of his personality and a symbol of masculinity, authority and wisdom. On the other hand, noted the judge, it's also a symbol of nonconformity and rebellion.

Inconsistent as they may be, concluded the judge, such symbols, under appropriate circumstances, merit Constitutional protection. And, to deny Herbie unemployment benefits because he insisted upon wearing a beard would be to deny him his protection under the First Amendment.

Charles Hulshof

SAN ANTONIO — Airman Charles E. Hulshof, son of Mrs. Margaret Hulshof of Portageville, Mo., Route Three, was among 13 volunteers who participated in a human performance experiment at the U. S. Air Force School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base.

Airman Hulshof, who had recently completed basic military training at Lackland AFB, underwent 30 hours of intensive training and testing designed to establish a means of measuring and recording the effects of stress on human performance.

The volunteers were given a traditional test battery which included target tracking, problem solving vigilance and short - term memory evaluations. They also took part in a "sudden-alert" study where performance was recorded following sudden awakening.

The airman is scheduled to attend technical training at Sheppard AFB, where he will be trained as a radiologist specialist.

Rochelle Julian

SAN ANTONIO — Airman Rochelle J. Julian, son of Mrs. Hazel Williams of 311 Virginia, New Madrid, Mo., has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB.

The airman has been assigned to the Technical Training Center at Chanute for specialized training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field.

Airman Julian attended Muncie (Ind.) Central High School.

ALAMOGORDO, N. M. -- Airman Julius R. Kershaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kershaw Jr. of Portageville, Mo., Route One, recently participated in a North Atlantic Treaty Organization training exercise in Germany.

Airman Kershaw is an airframe specialist at Holloman AFB with a unit of the 49th Tactical Fighter Wing that deployed to the Euorpean continent for the maneuvers.

The exercise -- "Crested Cap 74" -- was the fifth in a series demonstrating the U. S. contribution to NATO. The deployment also tested Tactical Air Command's ability to react under the "dual- based concept" of tactical air operations.

In early March, 49th F-4 Phantom aircraft and personnel were integrated with their operational host units at Bitburg and Hahn Air Bases where they supported concentrated flight training over the German countryside.

NATO -- celebrating its 25th anniversary -- maintains a readiness to cope with aggression against its 15 member nations.

Airman Kershaw is a 1972 graduate of Portageville High School.

As of Oct. 31, 1972, there were 30,828 officers and 1,984 civilians in the police roster in New York. Chicago was next with 13,125 officers and 1,266 civilians.

COOKING-UP

By MARY NOLEN

This week's column deals with some cool summer salads and how too handle, prepare and arrange them.

Knowing your greens is the beginning of a good salad. Not just lettuce, but leaves of crisp spinach, bright accents like dandelion, beet or mustard tops and watercress. Always buy crisp, fresh greens.

Handle greens with care by just pulling off the outer leaves of the lettuce head (and not too many if they're undamaged) wash greens only as you need them. Drain thoroughly and store in a plastic bag in the refrigerator.

When you are preparing to serve, select only the choice part of greens, discarding stems and cores. Tear greens, do not cut except when shredding or wedges are called for. Belgian endive may be stripped off as whole leaves or cut in slices which will come apart onion- fashion.

Make sure your greens are cold and dry. Pour dressing over the salad at the last minute, using enough to coat the leaves lightly. Toss gently, but well.

Salads should be arranged attractively but simple. On some occasions, however, you might want a salad with more formal eye appeal.

Here are a few salad ideas to try. Hope you like them.

CAESAR SALAD

1 clove garlic, halved
1/3 cup olive oil
8 anchovy fillets, cut up
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dry mustard
freshly ground pepper
1 large or 2 small bunches romaine, washed and chilled
Coddled egg
1 lemon
Garlic croutons
1/3 cup grated cheese

Just before serving, rub large salad bowl with cut clove of garlic. If desired, allow a few small pieces to remain in bowl. Add oil, anchovies, Worcestershire sauce, salt, mustard and pepper; mix thoroughly.

Into salad bowl, tear romaine into bite- size pieces (about 12 cups). Toss until glistening. Break egg onto romaine, squeeze juice from lemon over romaine. Toss until leaves are well coated. Sprinkle croutons and cheese over salad; toss.

Makes six servings.

BRUSSELS SPROUT SALAD

2 pkg. (10 oz. each) frozen Brussel Sprouts
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup salad oil
1½ tsp. chervil leaves
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tomato
Snipped parsley

Cook Brussels sprouts as directed on package; drain, shake vinegar, oil, chervil, salt and pepper in tightly covered jar.

Pour dressing over hot Burssels sprouts, turning each until well coated. Cover; refrigerate at least three hours.

SUMMER FRUIT BOWL

3 medium bananas
4 medium oranges, pared and sectioned (3 cups)
1 cup strawberries, halved
1 cup seedless green grapes, halved
Sour Cream- Honey Dressing

Peel bananas, slice into bowl. Cover completely with other fruit. Cover bowl and chill.

Just before serving, pour dressing over fruit; toss until fruit is well coated.

Makes 10 servings

SOUR CREAM- HONEY DRESSING

Blend one-half cup dairy cream, one tablespoons honey and one tablespoon of orange juice.

DILLY CUCUMBER SALAD

8 cups thinly sliced, pared cucumbers (about 4 medium)
1½ cups dairy sour cream
1 small garlic clove, crushed
2 tbsp. salad oil
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. white wine vinegar
½ tsp. dill weed

Place cucumbers in large bowl. Mix remaining ingredients except dill weed; pour over cucumbers and mix gently. Sprinkle with dill weed. Cover, refrigerate at least one hour. Mix lightly before serving. If desired, sprinkle with snipped parsley.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

FISH FILLETS—Delightful served with a Creole Sauce, steamed rice and lemon broccoli.

Fish fillets make delightful eating

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Fish fillets, lean and white-fleshed, are a nutritious choice for meals for a family, including those members of it who are calorie-watchers. Such frozen varieties as Greenland turbot, ocean perch, Pacific pollock and whiting make thrifty main courses.

The following recipe for Fish Creole is an excellent dish. Served with rice, we found it a hearty offering. A little of the Creole Sauce can garnish the fillets; the rest may be served separately so that eaters can take as much or as little as they like.

FISH CREOLE

1 pound fresh or frozen fish fillets
Salad oil
1 cup rice, cooked and hot
Creole Sauce, see below

If frozen, thaw fillets. Place in a well-oiled shallow baking pan; if fillets are not free of skin, place them skin side down because they will not be turned. Brush fillets with oil. Broil 3 to 4 inches from high heat until fish flakes easily and looks opaque when tested with a fork — 10 to 15 minutes. Serve with rice and Creole Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

CREOLE SAUCE

4 slices bacon, cut into 1-inch crosswise pieces
Large onion, cut in thin strips
Medium green pepper, seeded and cut in thin strips
2 tablespoons flour
1-pound can tomatoes, undrained
½ teaspoon sugar
1 small clove garlic, minced
Salt and pepper to taste
Chili powder to taste, if desired

In a 10-inch skillet, over low heat, cook bacon until crisp; with a slotted spoon remove bacon and drain on brown paper. To bacon fat in skillet add onion and green pepper; cook gently, stirring often, until transparent; with a slotted spoon remove and set aside. To remaining bacon fat in skillet add flour; cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until flour is lightly browned. Stir in bacon, onion and green pepper mixture and the remaining ingredients. Simmer, uncovered and stirring often, for about 10 minutes.

'Beef it up' this summer

BURGER PERFORMANCE

Ground beef is the number one choice for satisfying, economical meals. Most often it's burgers, so to keep interest high varied appeal is important. Here's a tasty alternative to putting patties between bun halves. Mix one pound ground beef with three tablespoons thinly sliced green onions, one teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Spread meat mixture on five of six slices of rye toast covering edges. Place on broiler rack so surface of meat is three inches from heat and broil until browned, six to eight minutes.

SALAD BOOSTER

There are many tempting ways to utilize leftover beef. In the summer, especially, it's smart to perk up a salad with it. This is an efficient way to provide a nutritious meal because the leftover beef contains the same amount of high quality protein and other important nutrients as when first prepared. Cut the cooked beef in julienne strips for salad appeal.

BEEF KABOB KLATCH

Kabobs add excitement to outdoor cookery. Cubes or strips of beef threaded on skewers with fruits or vegetables are easy to ready for the grill and delicious when served from it. Let it be "each to his own" for a fun and fast way to conviviality. The vegetable and fruit pieces should be of the size to cook or heat through, as necessary, by the time the meat is done and not before.

We watch TV every night to keep our set from being stolen.

Put your best foot forward and the auto ignoring the pedestrian signal will run over it.

A Lamb Dish That Is Delicious

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

With the advent of spring butcher stores are featuring lamb which can range in price from fairly moderate to astronomical, depending on the cut.

If the cost of a loin chop or steak makes you cringe, try some of the cheaper sections like the breast, neck and shoulder. With a little effort they can be transformed into delicious dishes that often surpass those made from the choicest cuts.

The consumption of lamb dates back to ancient times. When the Jews fled from Egypt, the Lord instructed them to each take a lamb and "eat the flesh in the night roast with fire and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs..."

In 17th-century Europe, they used to stuff lamb with ox suet, larks and olives. In the Middle East they roast the meat with herbs and pistachio nuts. To this day, during the U.N. General Assembly session in New York each fall, Middle East delegates lean heavily on couscous and other lamb dishes when they entertain.

1½ lbs. boneless lamb shoulder sliced thin
Seasoned flour
1-3rd cup butter
1 clove garlic chopped fine
½ cup chopped onion
1 lb. mushrooms sliced
Salt and pepper to taste
1½ cups sour cream
3 tablespoons dry sherry

Coat lamb with flour. Melt butter, add lamb, garlic and onions and cook till lamb is lightly browned on all sides. Add mushrooms, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over low heat 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add cream and sherry and mix well. Serve with cooked rice. Good with a chilled Beaujolais. Serves 6.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

Remember when you were a child and always making up poems to the four lines "Roses are red, violets blue?" Well, I guess Spring brings out the poet, good and bad in all of us.

Instead of
The grass is green
The sky is blue
If I had more time
I'd spend it with you,

But instead of spending time that way
And thinking of you every day
I find instead to my disgust
I'm cleaning up a house that's mussed
Or chasing dogs out of the shrubs
Or being Den Mother to some Cubs
And then there's dishes in the sink
And a vacuum cleaner on the blink
A yard that needs to be mowed right then
Or a Coffee Corner that must be penned
A budget figured out of the red
Or the covers straightened on a fella's bed,
A meal to cook - a cake to bake
Or someone to take fishing at the lake
Clothes to buy - errands to run
It seems as though I'm never done,
But, if I had the time to spare
And didn't have another care
I'd comb my hair and take my bath
And greet you with a merry laugh
I'd fix your drink and kiss your ear
And whisper words only you should hear
Instead of meeting you at the door
With household problems by the score
Too tired to even be polite
Or care if I start an ugly fight
Only wanting to get away
And grab some rest for another day
But, somehow if there could only be
More time together for you and me
Then I wouldn't do the things I do
Instead, I'd spend all my hours with you.

Salute To The Versatile Tuna

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

About 70 years ago, the California sardine, a mainstay in the diet of many Americans, disappeared from the waters off our West Coast. As local fishermen began search for a replacement, a San Pedro canner sensed the promise of tuna. He processed the first 700 cases of this new canned food in his Los Angeles plant.

Today, more than half a billion pounds of tuna are sold each year in the United States and consumed in numerous guises from casseroles to curries.

So great is the demand that fishing fleets ply the Pacific waters off Nicaragua, El Salvador, Ecuador, Peru, Mexico and Guatemala in quest of tuna.

In these days of soaring food costs, tuna has increased in popularity, since it is more economical than most red meats. The fact that tuna is high in protein and low in calories has placed it high on the lists of dieters.

Canned tuna packed in vegetable oil is a key ingredient in salads. All you need is a can opener, some lettuce and a little mayonnaise, plus some celery to make a tasty dish.

In recent years, the variety of tuna dishes has greatly increased. Today we have tuna curry, chili and tuna loaf.

Hostesses have also discovered that tuna pureed with cream cheese, sour cream or yogurt makes a number of delicious cocktail pates and dips.

We did not know until recently that tuna is also used in making soups, both hot and cold. Mixed with fresh vegetables and a broth, it makes a filling first course or even a main dish for lunch. It is also being served in cold gazpacho. For still another variation, here is a recipe for chilled tuna and avocado soup.

2 ripe avocados
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup light cream
2 cans (6½ or seven ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
1 pint chicken broth
2 teaspoons chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon hot sauce (optional)
Paprika or crumbled corn chips

Peel avocados, removing pits. Cut into pieces and place in electric blender. Add lemon juice and cream. Cover and process at low speed till smooth. Turn into large bowl. Place tuna, chicken broth, onion, salt and hot sauce in electric blender, cover and process at low speed till smooth. Stir in avocado mixture. Chill thoroughly. Serve in small chilled soup bowls with dash of paprika or crumbled corn chips. Serves 10. Good with a chilled Sancerre.

Canned peaches have many uses

For a refreshing dessert, drain fruit cocktail and reserve the syrup. Combine two tablespoons creme de menthe, two tablespoons cornstarch and lemon juice with reserved syrup in saucepan. Heat to thicken, stirring constantly. Add fruit and chill. Place one scoop lime sherbet into meringue shell and top with fruit cocktail sauce.

Canned cling peaches make a dependable dessert as well as a popular one. They're good chilled or heated. They become company fare, cold or hot if dressed with whipped cream with flaked coconut, grated orange or lime rind, candied ginger or grated sweet chocolate.

For a handsome meat garnish, broil or barbecue cling peach halves filled with currant jelly beside chops, hamburger or steaks for the last five minutes of cooking times.

Make a colorful festive garnish for your buffet table by filling golden canned cling peach halves with fruit or vegetable relish. If you like, spice the peaches first. Simmer them gently for five minutes in their syrup with a little vinegar, whole cloves and a stick of whole cinnamon. Cool and drain before using.

For a simple gay dessert youngsters will enjoy, whip chilled, partially set, red, fruit- flavored gelatin and fold in sparkling drained canned fruit cocktail. Serve with gingersnaps or graham crackers.

Body found

HAYTI — The body of a stillborn baby girl was found about 3:45 p.m. Tuesday in a ditch along a gravel road two miles northeast of Hayti, according to the Pemiscot County sheriff's department.

The baby had been wrapped in a blanket and apparently thrown into the ditch from a car. The body was found near a highway department shed.

A spokesman at the sheriff's office said an autopsy showed that the child was stillborn with an RH blood factor. It was a twin, but not an identical twin, the report said. The autopsy report also showed that the other twin could be normal, according to the spokesman.

Syria, Israel agree today to disengage

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel and Syria concluded a separation of forces agreement today after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger won a major Israeli concession on Palestinian guerrilla attacks.

The concession was not spelled out immediately.

Premier Golda Meir is to announce the agreement tonight, Israeli and Syrian commanders will sign the pact in Geneva in a few days, and the fighting is to stop and prisoners on both sides freed at that time.

At the United Nations in New York, a U.N. spokesman said the United States had informed the world body that Israel and Syria had agreed to disengage their forces on the Golan Heights front.

The spokesman said if requested the United Nations could shift troops from the U.N. Emergency Force standing between Egyptian and Israeli troops in Sinai to man a buffer zone between the Syrians and Israelis on the Golan Heights.

Unofficial Israeli informants said 1,250 U.N. troops would set up the buffer and that it would be one to four miles wide. They said it would stretch from Mt. Hermon along the Golan Heights, including the abandoned Golan capital of Quneitra and a strip 300 yards west of the wrecked town.

They said on each side of the buffer the armies would be reduced in two corridors, each six miles wide. In the front line corridor, troops would be limited to 6,000, with 75 tanks and 36 short-range cannon. In the deeper zone, each side would be restricted to 450 tanks, with no long-range artillery or antiaircraft missiles, they said.

Despite the lack of official confirmation, newsmen were invited to Mrs. Meir's office to drink a toast with Kissinger.

"It's all wrapped up," said one source close to Kissinger's negotiations. "It only needs the cabinet to ratify it and that is a formality."

Israel's state radio said the disengagement pact would be signed by Israeli and Syrian delegates in Geneva at the end of this week.

Mrs. Meir's cabinet met early this morning to discuss the pact, then scheduled an afternoon session during which it would decide "yes or no," according to an Israeli government communique. It said the decision would be final.

Information Minister Shimon Peres told newsmen he expected the announcement would be in "very general terms."

Meanwhile, Israeli officials said Mrs. Meir may quit office in the next 24 hours and turn over the government to Premier-Designate Yitzhak Rabin.

Noranda contract ratified by union

PORTAGEVILLE — Approximately 300 members of United Steel Workers of American Local 7686 Tuesday ratified a new 39- month contract with Noranda Aluminum Inc. by a 5 to 1 majority at a meeting in the National Guard Armory.

Workers began reporting for work today at the plant near Marston to end a 117-day - old strike which began when the old contract expired Jan. 31.

Four negotiating sessions had been held between company and union representatives since the strike began before agreement on a tentative contract was reached Thursday night.

A union source said the new contract, which expires Aug. 31, 1977, provides an estimated 90 to 95 per cent of the basic aluminum pact which was agreed upon in February by other aluminum companies and unions.

In addition to a wage increase, overall benefits extended in the new contract include upgraded life and hospitalization programs, supplementary benefits for unemployment, cost of living provisions, holidays and vacation time and vacation bonus plan.

The contract also includes a no strike clause.

Judge to rule on Harris murder case Tuesday

A decision on whether or not to bind Jim Harris, 201 Luther St., over to Circuit Court on a charge of first-degree murder was taken under advisement Tuesday by Magistrate Lloyd Briggs following a preliminary hearing in the Sikeston City Courtroom.

Briggs said he will rule on the case next Tuesday.

Harris is accused in the shooting death of Enoch "Red" Simmons March 4 at Harris's Cafe on Luther Street.

A previous first- degree murder charge was dismissed when Briggs ruled the state had failed to prove cause of death.

Witnesses testifying for the state during Tuesday's hearing were Scott County Coroner Gene Nunnelee and Willie Jones of Sikeston.

Nunnelee testified that he examined Simmons' body at Missouri Delta Community Hospital on March 4 and found five bullet wounds.

Jones, who was inside Harris's cafe at 210 Luther St. on the night of the shooting, said he saw Haris and Simmons having an argument and then start to fight. Jones said Simmons left the cafe and Harris told him not to come back, then when Simmons did return, Harris shot him four times.

"After the shooting Harris went back behind the counter, laid his gun down and started drinking a soda," Jones said.

Bumpers ends 30-year career of Sen. Fulbright

Fast-rising political newcomer Dale Bumpers ran away with the Arkansas Democratic senatorial nomination and ended the 30-year career of J. W. Fulbright, one of the leading powers in American foreign policy.

The two-term Aransas governor ran up almost a 2-to-1 victory margin Tuesday over Fulbright, who has been chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee for 15 years.

At the same time, 73-year-old Wayne Morse was winning the Democratic senatorial nomination for a political comeback in Oregon.

Morse, who like Fulbright was a leading Senate critic of U.S. Vietnam policy, will meet Sen. Robert Packwood in the fall. Packwood, who ousted Morse after 24 years in the Senate in 1968, was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

In Kentucky, another of the Democratic new faces, Gov. Wendell Ford, won the party's nomination to challenge Republican Sen. Marlow Cook in November. Both scored easy victories over token primary opposition.

Just four years ago, Bumpers was a school board member and city attorney in Charleston, Ark., a town of 1,500. But in 1970 he upset former six-term Gov. Orval E. Faubus in the Democratic primary and went on to oust incumbent Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller.

He won re-election in 1972.

Both Fulbright and Bumpers said they were surprised at the size of Bumpers' win.

Bumpers, 48, had called for new leadership in Washington to deal with problems such as inflation, energy, federal spending and post-Watergate political clean-up. Fulbright stressed his seniority and experience, but at 69 said he would "cheerfully accept" retirement if that was the voters' verdict.

With 2,626 of the state's 2,786 precincts reporting, Bumpers had 345,801 votes, or 65 per cent, to Fulbright's 187,718, or 35 per cent.

Morse, who was voted out at the height of his anti-Vietnam war effort, used the related theme of usurpation of constitutional power by the President, but said "the numbers of us opposed to it are increasing."

With 1,647 of the 2,514 Oregon precincts reporting, Morse had 89,211 votes, or 49.2 per cent, compared to 71,604, or 39.5 per cent, for his chief opponent in the four-way race, state Senate President Jason Boe.

In the Arkansas Democratic gubernatorial primary, former Rep. David H. Pryor, 39, of Little Rock held a bare majority of 51 per cent. Faubus was in second place with 33 per cent, followed by Lt. Gov. Bob Riley. Pryor must stay above 50 per cent to avoid a runoff.

In the Oregon gubernatorial race, state Sen. Victor Atiyeh scored an upset victory over Secretary of State Clay Myers in the Republican primary, while former state Treasurer Robert Straub led a field of 10 Democrats.

Republican Gov. Tom McCall is barred by Oregon law from seeking a third consecutive term.

With 3,139 of Kentucky's 3,268 precincts reporting, the 47-yearold Cook had 87.2 per cent of the Republican vote, and Ford, 49, had 84.8 per cent in the Democratic primary.

LET'S MOVE ON THE METRIC SYSTEM

The United States is slowly converting to the metric system of measurements on a piecemeal basis, but we have still not adopted it at the national level.

Recently the House rejected a bill that would have guided conversion to the metric system voluntarily over the next ten years. This time the bill failed because of a battle over who should pay the cost of making the change.

Conversion to the system, which is now used in every other major nation in the world, would have a far- reaching effect in this country. It would change inches, feet, miles, pints and pounds to centimeters, kilometers, liters and grams. It would affect measurements in the home as well as in business. It would call for a revolution in the use of mathematics and the retaining of millions of workers. It would also require new sets of tools marked with the new measurements.

Educators, businessmen, scientists and builders have become convinced that the time has long passed when the United States should catch up with the rest of the world and use the system of measurement which is the most adaptable.

In some parts of the country and in some business and engineering projects the conversion has already taken place. For automobile manufacturers have switched to metric and some school systems are preparing to convert their textbooks to the metric system by 1976.

Proponents of the system point out that American trade suffers from not using the same system as our trading partners.

The House rejection came because of disagreement and confusion over the cost of new tools and retraining of workers. Although it is predicted that the bill is dead for this session, there is a stronger bill pending in the Senate. The Senate bill would require all federal contractors to convert to the metric system within the next ten years.

We urge the Senate to approve the measure and send it to the House where a compromise could be worked out before we waste more time. Here is one area where this country has failed in its support of progress. It's time to stop dragging our feet.

FISH DRIVE. May 30. Pekan, Pahang, Malaysia. 'Fish Drive is held in the morning of May 30, to give happiness to H.R.H. The Sultan and guests. Tons of 'Tuba Roots' are pounded for the juice that intoxicates the fish. His Royal Highness and guests wait in their boats for the first intoxicated fish to appear. The honour of catching the first fish is rightly that of His Royal Highness. Fish Drive has never failed. The riverine villagers await this happy day.'

RELIEF IN ADVERTISING

For many years we have been a searcher for and regular reader of personals in the classified columns of various papers. We can never remember one which appealed to us like this one in the St. Louis Globe Democrat last Friday. "Attention to all: Please pray for Danny Strohmeyer, 16 mos. old, dying of meningitis, alive by machine only." It was unsigned. We prayed, and expect countless others did. We imagine it was all that Danny's mother realized she could do to help her baby boy, and we feel sure the advertisement gave her a certain amount of relief from her grief.

GASOLINE SHORTAGES,
LOW SPEED,
LESS TRAVEL

For May, nationwide, there will be a 10.4% increase in gasoline supplies over April although Missouri is one of four states whose supply will be cut. Ours will go down 6%, one of only four states to lose in total supplies.

Beginning in June, however, the Federal Energy Administration at Washington last week predicted a return of shortages for the rest of 1974.

The predictions are a continuing argument for the present 55 mile speed limits, a definite saving for passenger vehicles; and the planning of vacations during which all of us will travel less, go shorter distances, and stay longer in one place.

EFFICIENCY MAY BE CAUSING DAMAGING PICTURE

St. Louis was recently conceded to have the most efficient system of keeping crime statistics of any city in the nation.

And because of this very efficiency and top rank it seems to be going to the top of the cities class in rate of crime per thousand people.

Cities of the nation are rated according to the number of crimes reported, not on those actually committed that never get on the record of less efficient city governments.

Chances are that the St. Louis crime rate is no greater than in other cities of its class and size in the United States, but it is getting an unsavory reputation, it now seems, because other cities have a less efficient crime reporting system, and therefore a smaller percentage of their crimes reported.

Sometimes you just can't win, no matter how efficient you are.

NOTICE ANYTHING SIMILAR?

Last week the head of the East German government, Willy Brandt, resigned when one of those whom he trusted had failed to live up to the trust that had been placed in him. He saved his country from a lot of anxiety by getting out, and assumed the responsibility of having named that man to the office he held. Do any of you readers see any similarity country? We greatly fear we'll go through nearly three more years of fear, shame and lack of leadership because we have a man who hides things from his people, refuses to tell Congress what it wants to know, and daily loses the confidence his nation ought to have in him. Yes, we fell sorry for him. We have lived a long time but not even when Harding was President was the nation so disturbed.

THE UNKNOWN
QUANTITY -- WHAT TECHNOLOGY COULD DO

Forecasters of trends in human affairs are invariably wide of the mark -- for one very good reason. Their forecasts must, of necessity, rest on contemporary knowledge.

As for example, in the days of Columbus, who could have foretold the impact of the invention of the airplane or the development of transatlantic jet service?

So it is today with the forecasters, especially those who underrate the role of technology in the future development.

A sample of what technology could do is indicated by a report from Brigham Young university, Provo, Utah, where scientists report they have achieved a "theoretical breakthrough" in the harnessing of fusion power. If these scientists are correct, so the report goes, controlled fusion in the laboratory might well be demonstrated in the next five years instead of in the mid-1990s as expected by most experts.

In terms of everyday life, what are the implications of this "theoretical breakthrough?"

It is said that, if fusion reactors can be perfected, their benefits to mankind will be legion.

The National Observer notes these benefits include no radioactive waste or pollutants to befoul the environment; cheap production of hydrogen gas which can replace natural gas and fuel zero pollution automobiles; much safer power plant designs than the old-fashioned fission reactors and an inexhaustible, inexpensive, superpowerful, light- weight fuel supply, making possible such things as more practical interpanetary travel. There could be the possibility of interstellar travel that would put the stars within reach of man and open a frontier without end.

Forecasts of the future that entertain such views as these are not pipe dreams.

They reflect the frontier of scientific thinking that has always made a shambles of forecasting the future twists and turns of mankind's existence on Earth.

KLEINDIENST'S GUILT

Former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst has pleaded guilty to a charge that he "did refuse and fail to answer accurately and fully questions" by the Senate Judiciary Committee during his 1972 confirmation hearings. The offense is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine and up to a year in jail.

Kleindienst is lucky not to be charged with perjury, a felony.

Kleindienst was the official ultimately responsible for settlement of the government's anti- trust action against the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ITT). The Senate committee was intensly interested in the part played in settlement of the case by the White House and in the effect of an ITT contribution to the Republican Party.

Kleindienst declared under questioning, "In the discharge of my responsibilities as the acting attorney general in these cases, I was not interfered with by anybody at the White House. I was not importuned. I was not pressured. I did not have conferences with respect to what I should or should not do."

In response to a direct question if there were any "suggestions coming from the White House as to what action should be taken by the Justice Department" on the ITT case, Kleindienst replied, "No sir."

It was disclosed subsequently that President Nixon had telephoned Kleindienst and ordered him to stop appearling an ITT anti-trust decision that went against the government. The Justice Department's anti- trust division had recommended the appeal. Kleindienst later threatened to resign and the President withdrew the order.

The charge against Kleindienst that he "did refuse and fail to answer accurately and fully" is based on the failure to disclose the President's order to drop the Supreme Court appeal.

The special prosecutor's decision to go easy on Kleindienst and not press perjury charges evidently is in return for the former attorney general's cooperation. To Kleindienst's credit, he did stand up to the President and insist on the appeal.

But it is evident that Kleindienst misled the Senate committee while testifying under oath. His testimony amounted to a cover-up of the President's involvement in the ITT case. The President was aware of the cover-up and acquiesced in it by doing nothing to set the record straight.

A former head of the U. S. Department of Justice pleading guilty to a criminal charge is a dismaying sight. No less dismaying is that the President shares responsibility for the hookwinking of the Senate.

THE VIEWS ON
MR. NIXON

It is almost unbelievable what one reads in newspapers in defense of President Richard M. Nixon. There are many letters to the editors praising Mr. Nixon to the skies and downgrading anyone who takes exception to the man.

Mr. Nixon is not a friend of the press. He never has been and he never will be. He is not a friend of the television groups and he never will be. In fact, Mr. Nixon is hard run for friends at this time.

There are letters about the outrageous statements about Mr. Nixon. One can only laugh them off. Any person who has read any part of the tapes has to be aware of the fact that Mr. Nixon was quite foolish in ever releasing them.

Maybe they do not convict him, but most certainly those tapes do not put Mr. Nixon on any type of a pedestal. There are those who would like to refer back to the swearing of other Presidents. That, of course, is stupid talking and stupid thinking. The language Mr. Nixon has used is not only offensive, it is repulsive.

Democrats seem very content to leave Mr. Nixon in office now. That could be because there is an election coming up in a matter of weeks and they would like to use Mr. Nixon as a stepping stone into office. Republicans, many of them, on the other hand, want him out of office so that their chances of winning an election are enhanced.

It is also so strange, this government of ours. Most persons certainly would have to agree that Mr. Nixon's success as a President is ended. Regardless of what happens from here on out, Mr. Nixon will never be an effective leader. He may serve out his remaining months in office, but Richard Nixon has lost whatever greatness he ever had. And he did it all by himself.

PRINTED WORD ENDURES

From the time television assumed a major role in the art of human communications, there have been those who have felt the demise of the printed word was only a matter of time. Yet, as Mr. James J. Kilpatrick has written: "... the situation is far from hopeless. The late Douglas Southall Freeman used to complain, in his melacholy moments, that newspapermen write on sand. In a sense we do. Yet this is better than television, which writes on wind. The printed word must always have this enormous advantage over TV -- that it is available to the reader at his convenience, to be absorbed in whole or in part, at any hour; to be clipped, filed, or mailed. Some of the products of our labor may be used to wrap the fish, but as a medium of communication, the printed word endures." Both TV and the printed word have their places so long as we live in a land where freedom of speech and freedom of the press stand as bulwarks of liberty.

One hour of farm labor in 1972 produced over twice as much food as it did on 1957-59. During this same time, output per manhour in non- farm work has increased 78%.

TRUTH ALIVE

Truth is still alive in the world. Even in Russia, where thought control is practiced with scientific precision, thoughts of freedom stir in the breasts of the masses. Some persons are even willing to risk jail to express those thoughts and share them. "The Chronicle of Current Events" is an underground publication that reportedly tells the true story of what is happening in Russia. A wire service dispatch to American newspapers recently said the "Chronicle" has resumed publication after having been suppressed for 18 months. The story, filed from Moscow, said that when the publication was shut down a year and a half ago, many arrests were made by the secret police.

The re-awakening of the "Chronicle" may not seem very significant to the citizens of the U.S., where freedom of speech and press exist. It should be recalled, however, that the Correspondents of the early days of our country were engaged in printing the clandestine message of freedom. They helped pave the way for a new nation.

It behooves us all to exercise our right of speech and publication. Let us all tell the editors of newspapers, through letters, what we think of national and international affairs. Freedom of thought and expression are basic to political truth. If we do not exercise our precious rights now, generations that follow us may also have to publish underground chronicles. HLH

LOWERING MORAL STANDARDS

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Morality Agency has just announced that it was lowering its moral standards for the next two years.

Fosdick Fleigenheimer told me, "We feel we can lower the moral level of the country without its becoming hazardous to anyone's health."

"But why?" I protested. "The whole idea behind the Environmental Morality Agency mandate was to clean up the political pollution in the country."

"We don't like to lower the standards," Fleigenheimer said, "but we have no choice. If we raise the levels of morality in 1974, we could cause massive unemployment on Capitol Hill in November. We also feel that Congress and the Administration need more time to study the best way of doing away with political pollution. I assure you the agency is still very concerned about the problem, but we do have to consider the costs."

"What about the public? They were counting on higher moral standards after Watergate."

"We've done some extensive testing in our laboratories, and we've considered that the average American can take far more lying from his government than anyone thought he could. We know that we can increase the dose of false statements and contradictions three times the present level, and people could still live with it. While cleaning up the Watergate atmosphere is an ideal goal, Congress and the President do not want to throw out the baby with the bath water."

"That's well put," I told Fleigenheimer. "But aren't you going to have to do something within the next two years to show the country you are sincere about instituting higher moral standards in the

"I assure you we're doing everything we can within reason. The do-gooders want us to destroy the whole system in the name of morality. But it can't be done overnight. The important thing to remember is that we have been living very well with low morality levels for a long time. Some people have even thrived on them."

"Who sets the morality standards for the country?" I asked.

"The President of the United States. He is in the best position to know just how much morality the country can stand."

"But according to the transcripts, the President was shown to have very low moral standards. Isn't it dangerous to let one man have that much power?"

"Possibly. But as Father McLaughlin, who is the White House adviser, put it, 'Who wants a saint in the White House?'"

"That's true. But in 1968 President Nixon said he would clean up the political climate produced by the Democrats by 1972. Now it turns out the atmosphere is so bad you can choke on it."

"Nobody's perfect," Fleigenheimer said defensively. "If the President of the United States can live with lower moral standards, so can the rest of the country."

"Suppose Ralph Nader or John Gardner sues your agency for not carrying out the provisions of the Political Clean Air Act. What will you do then?"

"We'd have to defend ourselves. We'll tap their telephones, audit their income taxes, break into their offices and steal their doctors' records."

"That should do it," I said.

Fleigenheimer said, "You have to keep in mind political expediencey in Washington must always have priority over unrealistic moral standards. Otherwise everyone in this

Wine and Blood: Teamsters Chief Confers Privately With Cardinal -- Protests Church's Support of Chavez

WASHINGTON — Whether they've sought it or not, eminent Catholic clergymen, and indeed, some of their highest church bodies, have been thrust smash into the national political and labor conflicts of these agitated days.

Controversy over possible punishment of White House aide, the Jesuit Rev. John J. McLaughlin by his superior and the role of Massachusetts Congressman Rev. Robert Drinan, who loathes Dick Nixon, has surfaced on front pages.

But the Teamsters effort to swing the National Conference of Catholic Bishops (NCCB) from its powerful support of Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers (UFW) boycott of table grapes and head lettuce harvested by Teamsters union members has gone unreported.

For example, during the morning of May 17, Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons spent some two hours with the Archbishop of Washington, the Most Reverend William Cardinal Baum. It's natural that Fitzsimmons should turn to the Cardinal. Though virtually all major American religious bodies have endorsed Chavez's tiny union, the toughest, most militant most consistent backing of the UFW (AFL-CIO) has come from the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. This is a very influential organization since it is comprised of all Catholic Bishops.

Further, it has a five- year - old bishops' Committee on Farm Labor which has lashed at the Teamsters for absorbing some 50,000 field workers, mostly Chicanos, who formerly were in the Chavez fold.

Fitzsimmons, himself a devout Catholic, reportedly told Cardinal Baum that he had dispatched a long telegram last November to His Eminence John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia. The latter is president of the bishops' national Conference which has sharply criticized the Teamsters last November.

According to one version of the conversation between Cardinal Baum and the Teamsters chief, Fitzsimmons said he had never received a reply from Cardinal Krol. Further, the union president said bitterly he had not been permitted to appear before the bishops' 14th national conference last November when it adopted a stinging anti-Teamsters pro- boycott resolution -- which called for free elections among field workers so they could pick a union of their choice.

Actually there is no reason why some impartial body shouldn't now be selected to run these elections. There are ample precedents for such action. Fitzsimmons did ask Cardinal Baum to make it possible to sit with a smaller bishops' coordinating committee so he could tell the Teamsters story.

Cardinal Baum, of course, is of considerable prestige in clerical and lay circles. He is a member of the NCCB's administrative committee as well as sitting on several other bodies. But he is not on the farm labor committee.

This group is headed by Bishop Joseph Donnelly of Hartford. It is advised by the internationally famed scholar and writer, Msgr. George Higgins whose devout passion is Chavez and the Mexican-American workers. It is not their faith to hate. But they come mighty close to it when they discuss some Teamsters leaders.

They are in intimate touch with the AFL-CIO which now, under president George Meany's direction, slowly is building a national boycott machine. Almost weekly there is an outpouring of anti-Teamsters boycott material flowing from the federation's Union Label and Service Trades Dept. to all AFL-CIO central labor councils. At last count there were 831 of these in all states and most major communities.

For his part, Fitzsimmons and his own high command have publicly and privately assured other labor leaders that they can't expect any Teamsters' support anywhere, under any circumstances, if they join in the boycott of grapes (and wines made from them) and lettuce picked by Teamsters members.

"If you are not with us, you must be against us," Fitzsimmons has said. "We do not propose to support unions that are fighting us."

But this is the secular front, for the moment the less significant. It's on the ecclesiastical front that Fitzsimmons now is fighting.

The Teamsters want the church, the Catholics in particular and the others in general, to get out of this labor conflict. He has put it more bluntly. He has told some priests to stay home and care for spiritual matters and leave labor to its leaders.

This isn't apt to happen. Msgr. Higgins, who is based in Washington, is in what might be called the National Conference's secretariat, and has no intention of abandoning Chavez and the UFW. Thus, Fitzsimmons' long dialogue with Cardinal Baum Archbishop of Washington is of considerably significance if the prelate should intervene.

Perhaps out of all this can come those much discussed free elections and the wine will flow instead of blood.

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Postmaster General Ted Klassen, like a kindly old uncle, has been padding the postal payroll with his cronies and former business associates.

It's Uncle Sam and the mail users, meanwhile, who pick up the huge payroll tab.

Our continuing investigation into Klassen's shenanigans has now uncovered a payroll boondoggle of major proportions. We found that Klassen's best friend and many of his former business associates have been allowed to feed at the public trough -- compliments of the postmaster general.

"Lew Walters hocked his watch to lend me money once," Klassen often brags about his oldest friend Now, Walters reaps the rewards of his loyalty, collecting a fat consultant fee. What he does is a mystery to practically everyone at the Postal Service, but he rakes in about $24,000 a year for doing it.

The highest paid consultant, however, was Sydney Baron, a former public relations man at American Can, the firm Klassen headed before coming to the Postal Service. Until his contract was cancelled May 9, Baron collected an incredible $500 a day for his work. And for Baron, the Postal Service defined a day when "a reasonable amount of time is spent on Postal Service matters."

Baron, however, is not the only alumnus of American Can who has drawn a fat paycheck. Some of the American Can crowd have formed sort of a preretirement village, hanging on the postal payroll until they accrue enough time to retire with a pension.

Ellsworth Pell, for example, retired from American Can and is now holding down a non- job at the rate of $35,000 a year. Postal sources claim that Pell never made more than $20,000 a year at American Can.

Harold Larsen, another American Can graduate, was slipped into a do- nothing job by Klassen, too. He was started out as New York regional be removed for inefficiency. Klassen is now taking care of him at $45,000 a year, with an easier job at headquarters.

Ben Bailar and Darrell Brown are two former American Can men now in the $50,000 neighborhood at the Postal Service. Brown's postal section is used by Klassen as a dumping ground for old cronies he is reluctant to fire. For example, Len Farrell was demoted from assistant postmaster general for labor relations, but continues to draw a higher salary than his successor. Farrell is hanging on for a pension.

Brown's division also took care of Paul Carlin, who was deposed as a senior assistant postmaster general. Carlin stayed on as an aide to Brown, but still collected about $46,000. The man who took over his duties makes about $43,000.

Meanwhile, middle-level postal hands complain that they cannot get the manpower they need because of budget considerations.

Blacks and women in the mail system protest that none of their number has made it to the top levels of management. Only five blacks, for example, have hit the $30,000 plateau at the Postal Service.

One of the highest paid women is Peggy Ford, who is Klassen's personal secretary. Sources contend that her $26,000 job is secure, because she knows "where all the bodies are buried." Her husband, a retired military man, is now on the payroll at more than $30,000.

At the same time, postmasters across the nation are being told to tighten their belts. The Postal Service is in financial trouble and cannot yet ask for another rate increase. Klassen is hoping that economies in the field and a friendly Congress will bail him out.

FOOTNOTE: A postal spokesman told my associate Jack Cloherty that Pell, Carlin and Farrell all did necessary jobs at the Postal Service. The spokesman denied that Brown's area was a "dumping ground" and generally defended Klassen's employment practices.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Although some Republican congressmen are running away from the President, the party itself still hasn't stopped politicking for Richard Nixon. The GOP spent more than $14,000 to send sanitized summaries of the Watergate transcripts to key Nixon supporters throughout the nation ... Despite his hectic schedule, Vice President Gerald Ford still finds time to thank his staff personally for their work. An aide recently received a handwritten birthday note from Ford ... The Federal Energy Administration has pleaded that the United States desperately needs more refineries to over come the gasoline shortage. Yet the Export- Import Bank, heavily supported with U.S. cash, has granted a $22.3 million loan at six per cent interest to build a refinery in the West Indies. To build the same refinery in the United States, an American firm would have to pay 11 per cent interest, plus higher labor and building costs ...

There may be some complaints about the mail, but not from the White House. Postmaster General Ted Klassen told us that he hasn't spoken with President Nixon for well over a year ... The FBI has been doing some public relations work on ex- foreign agent Dusko Popov who claims in a book that he warned the late J. Edgar Hoover about Pearl Harbor. FBI agents dropped by the Publisher, Grosset and Dunlop and tried to convince vice president Bob Markel that Popov was lying. Markel listened politely, then published the book ... Many weeks ago, a Watergate investigator called a Washington dentist and asked for temporary treatment for a bad tooth problem which, he said, he would take care of when he went back home. The investigator recently called back and asked for a permanent fix. It looked like he would be here awhile, he said

Hunt bound over to Circuit Court

NEW MADRID - - Jimmy Hunt was bound over to Circuit Court for trial on a charge of tampering with a motor vehicle when he waived a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Tuesday before Judge Leo Hedgepeth.

Hunt posted $500 bond and is to appear in Circuit Court on Sept. 9. He is accused of removing a battery from a car belonging to Lennie Johnson without Johnson's permission.

An attorney was appointed to defend Mrs. Deloris Davis, and a preliminary hearing will be set later on a charge of felonious assault with intent to kill by shooting her husband John David with a 20 gauge shotgun.

Murder charges against Lindol Curtis, stemming from the May 7 shooting deaths of Mary Louise Curtis and Susan Gwaltney, were continued to allow Curtis additional time to secure an attorney.

A total of $100 in fines and costs were levied against Beulah Collins and Jessie Collins who were charged with fraudulently obtaining a Missouri resident fishing license and fishing without non-resident fishing permits.

Wiley Bell drew a 90-day jail sentence and $50 fine on charges of littering the streets in Catron and drinking in public.

Dan Tillman forfeited $100 bond and Louis Clark forfeited $50 bond on speeding charges. Others paying fines on speeding charges were Robert Ronald Larmze, $35; Junior Byassee, $26; Charles Shipman, $28; Danny Dale Lefler, $26; and Fred Sickery, $40.

Kentucky golf tournament is June 5

MURRAY, Ky. — A record field of more than 125 ladies from the four-state area around western Kentucky is expected to participate in the seventh annual George Hart Invitational Tournament June 5 at Murray- Calloway Country Club.

Invitations have been sent to lady golfers at 35 clubs in the area, and the number of entries is expected to surpass last year's field of 123 players in the one- day, 18-hole, medal play event.

Mrs. Betty Lowry and Mrs. Elizabeth Slusmeyer are co- chairmen for the tournament, assisted by Mrs. Carol Hibbard and Mrs. Frances Hulse, co- chairman of the club's ladies golf activities.

The $8 entry fee covers the entire day's activities, including a social hour, lunch and unannounced special activities in addition to 18 holes of competitive golf.

Entries and handicaps should be sent to Mrs. Lowry (707 Elm St., Murray, Ky. 42071) not later than May 30. Following the entry deadline, pairings will be made and tee- off times will be sent to the clubs of the ladies from whom entries have been received.

Flighting will be done at the end of the first nine holes of play, and all ties will be decided by mini- max handicap.

The top winners in each of six flights will receive prizes valued at several hundred dollars. The winner of the championship flight also will receive the coveted traveling trophy, presented by Mrs. Lochie Hart of Murray in memory of her husband, the late George Hart.

A prominent civic leader, Hart was mayor of Murray, president of Bank of Murray and an active member of the club.

Another special trophy to be awarded will be the Dorothy Holland Team Trophy, an award donated by Al Lindsey, a Murray jeweler, in memory of his aunt.

The trophy will be presented to the four players from any one club whose aggregate score is the lowest of any similar group participating. Miss Holland was an active member of the club before her death in 1970.

Last year it was won by the Paxton Park team from Paducah -- Wanda Mullinax, Mary Jane Alford, Virginia Davis and Eleanor Griffin -- with an aggregate score of 343.

The defending champion is Mrs. Harriett Jaeger of Jackson, Mo. Mrs. Jaeger, playing in the tournament for the first time, shot an 81 to edge Mrs. Mary Bain of Sikeston, Mo., by a single stroke for the championship Mrs. Alford and Mrs. Hulse, tied for third with 145s.

Previous winners of the championship flight have been: Mrs. Mary Jane Nail of Mayfield, 1968; Mrs. Mary Anderson of Metropolis, Ill., 1969; Mrs. Alford, 1970 and 1972; Mrs. Betty Vowell of Fulton, 1971; and Mrs. Jaeger.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Call me petty, ungracious, whatever -- but I must get this off my mind.

For years I travelled with crummy luggage. Finally I decided to do without a few other things and buy myself some really classy travelling cases, a matched set, even if it took me two years. Which it did.

In the past three months four relatives have asked if they could borrow my luggage. I said yes, like a damned fool, to the first person. Although she took only one piece (around the world), it looked as if it had been kicked at least halfway. Her only comment was, "You know how careless the airlines are."

After that, I decided to say no to everyone who asked. So now they are mad at me. The last sorehead is going on a trip that will cost her $1500. Wouldn't you think she could afford to buy some decent luggage instead of trying to borrow mine? -- The Target

Dear Tar: I know of very few pepope who lend things and keep their friendships intact. Better to say "no" and let somebody else be mad than to say "yes" and be the one who is.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't trust my own judgment anymore. Please put your brains in my head for a few minutes.

I went with Brad for four years. When I say "went with" I mean five evenings a week and sometimes the "evening" lasted till the next morning, if you get what I mean. We are both in our late 20s and have talked about marriage.

Three months ago, Brad began to have headaches. His doctor said he needed a change. He announced bluntly, "I think I need another girl." I nearly died of the shock. Within three weeks he married a blonde from the steno pool at his office. It nearly killed me.

They weren't back from their honeymoon ten days when Brad started to call me, begging me to see him. Yesterday he came to my apartment, cried his eyes out, said he had made a terrible mistake, was getting a divorce and could we pick up where we left off. I asked him if he wanted to marry me. He said, "No. I think we should get reacquainted." Is he crazy? What should I do? -- Undy-Sided

Dear Undy: Yes, he's crazy. And if you take up with him again you are crazy, too.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a needling sense of humor. He doesn't care what he says as long as it gets a laugh. Frequently, he hands me the paper and says, "Well, here's your letter in Ann Landers' column." Today really did it. The letter was from a woman who needed a facelift.

I am three years older than Vic and have always been sensitive about it. I have a good figure, have kept my hair dark (with a little help from the beautician), and my skin has held fairly well. About six months ago, I noticed my neck was getting a little crepey and the pounces under my eyes more noticeable. I find myself wearing sunglasses even when there's no sun.

We're a littled strapped for money but I want a facelift. Is it expensive? Any advice? -- Fifty And Feel It

Dear 50: Don't hunt for bargains. Consult a reputable plastic surgeon whose work you have seen. Get his opinion on what needs to be done and how much it will cost. Then if you can afford it go ahead -- if he believes he can achieve the desired results.

DETROIT, Mich. - To some 75,000 women, a "Phillips" now means more than one of the neighbors and a "crescent" conjures up a different image than the moon over a lake.

The words describe two of the four tools Women on Wheels program graduates have come to recognize and use as easily as eyeliner and lipstick to correct stalled cars... corroded battery terminals and aim headlights.

The "WOW" program, entering its third year, is carried out through Dodge and Chrysler-Plymouth dealers across the country.

"WOW" was designed to uncomplicate the car for women," according to John Farley, service information and planning manager for Chrysler's U.S. Automotive Sales and Service Group.

"It explains the mechanical operation of an automobile, how to recognize serious car trouble and what easy measures the average woman driver can undertake herself if she has a minor problem with her car," says Farley.

"When a lady finishes the WOW sessions, she should be able to administer vital 'first aid' to her car, using just four simple tools: a flat blade screwdriver, a Phillips screwdriver, a crescent wrench and pliers."

The WOW sessions also teach the women to "talk car," says Farley, a vital communications tool when bringing the family motor car in with a service problem.

A limited supply of a newly developed pamphlet describing the WOW program and offering numerous car care and operating tips is available on a first come basis, Farley said. It may be obtained by writing: WOW, P.O. Box 970-A, Detroit, Mich. 48232.

The program is open to all women, not only Chrysler Corp. car owners.

It is conducted in four weekly sessions of two hours each in specially prepared sections of the dealership's service department.

The first class familiarizes the women students with how an auto runs. A car is examined inside and out and from top to bottom, using a hoist, raising the hood and removing the wheels, to provide most of the gals their first intimate view of an automobile's vitals and their workings.

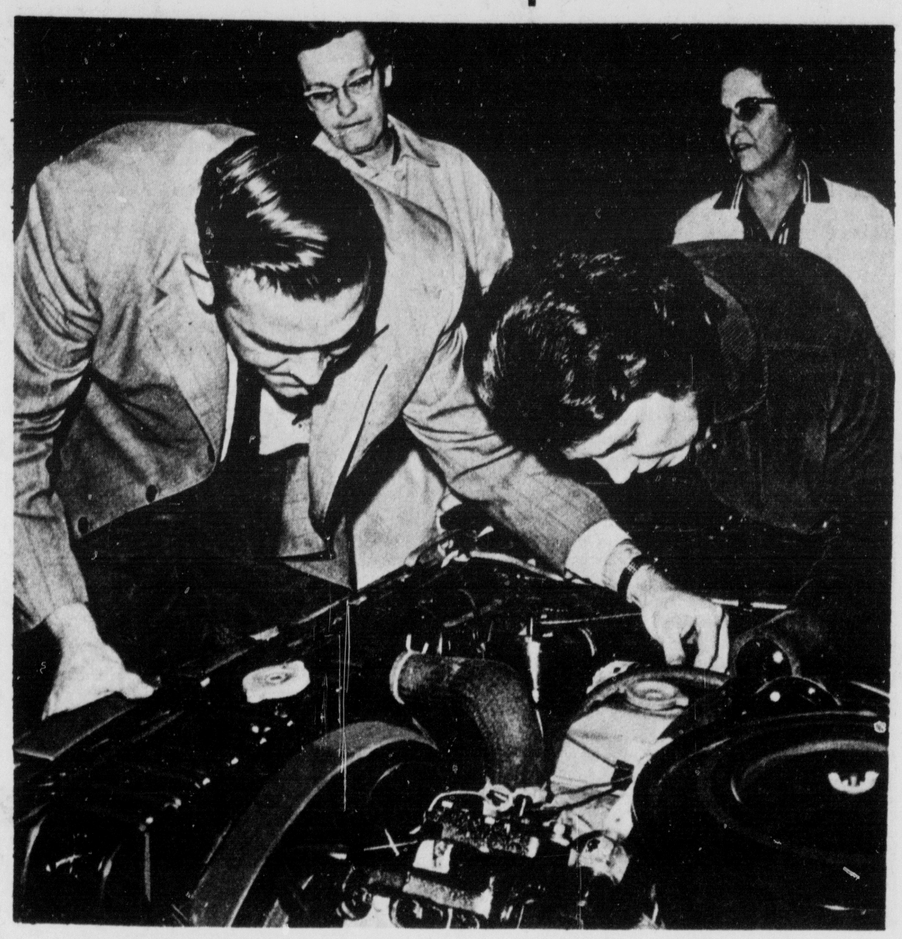
The second session focuses on electrical aspects and the possible diagnostic checkouts if a car won't start, such as battery terminals, spark plug wires, points and coil. What can be done about fuses, small light bulb replacements and minor malfunctions in turn indicators is covered, along with brake and parking lights.

The third session gets into braking and fuel systems. How the brake system functions and how to easily determine when an adjustment or new lining is needed, are explained. Also covered are how to ascertain flooding and what to do about it, and what to do when out of gas.

The fourth session concerns noise identification, safety and handling. The students change a flat tire and learn techniques for driving in snow, rain, on ice and in traffic jams. They learn to identify slipping power steering or fan belt sounds and their importance. Various chassis or suspension noises are demonstrated as to cause and severity.

The average class size is about 15, but dealers will take as few as seven in sparsely populated areas. WOW graduates receive a course book for future reference.

Women interested in taking a WOW course may contact their local Dodge or Chrysler-Plymouth dealer.



Women drivers learn procedures

A Phillips is more than the name of a neighbor to a Women on Wheels program graduate. They learn it is one of four tools to aim headlights or get stalled cars started, among a myriad of other simple car trouble fixes. Above, an instructor goes through the spark plug wiring system in a WOW class. Nearly 75,000 women have completed the WOW sessions in the United States.

Fruits, vegetables mean vitamins

By LAURENCE M. HURSH
National Dairy Council
Consultant

The big message in fruits and vegetables is vitamins. Quite a few of the foods in this group are rich in iron as well. Vegetables will "turn you on" whether you cook them or eat them raw. Fresh or canned fruits fit in with everything. Eat at least four servings of fruits and vegetables daily as part of the four food group plan for good health.

Your kitchen can be a dangerous room in your house. Cuts, falls, burns and poisoning -- all these can happen in the kitchen if you're not careful. Keep poisons and medicine somewhere else, out of reach. Prevent burns and cuts by not leaving these risks unattended. And keep your children away fromelectricity.

Milk is an important food for the elderly. It contains a wide variety of nutrients. If chewing is a problem, milk, alone or with eggs, may be the major source of high quality protein. Calcium in milk may protect against demineralization of bones. Milk fat is sometimes tolerated when other fats cause digestive distress.

Salads can make a wonderful lunch, especially for businessmen and women who have to return to a desk for an afternoon's work. Almost any restaurant menu now offers salads that are almost a complete meal in themselves. Have one with milk as a beverage and you'll avoid that sleepy afternoon feeling that a heavier meal can create.

Good nutrition won't guarantee athletic ability. But it will go a long way to helping your young athlete reach his full potential in sports. Well- balanced meals each day, plus nutritious snacks, are the pattern he should follow with four or more glasses of milk a day and a wide variety of other foods.

Regularly, I suggest that people would feel better if they stopped skipping breakfast. To save arguments in the family, have your breakfast "skippers" try eating breakfast for two or three weeks and let them appraise for themselves whether they do or do not feel better in the morning and accomplish more at school or at work.

The hamburger is said to have been popular in Germany before immigrants brought the idea to the United States. But Americans were the first to put it on a bun. This happened in 1904 at the St. Louis World's Fair, where the ice cream cone also was invented, and iced tea first served.

Book review

THIEVES LIKE US
by Edward Anderson
215 pp.)

THIEVES LIKE US, Edward Anderson's novel, originally published in 1937 and long unavailable, is now returned to print withthe Avon publication, in February, of a paperback edition. Hailed by reviewers upon its initial publication, and called "one of the great forgotten novels of the thirties," by Raymond Chandler, THIEVES LIKE US has attracted advance critical attention in its new edition. The New York Times has called it "a 36- year- old mint specimen of the crime novel, happily recycled into paperback." The novel, the story of three convicts- turned- bank robbers who stage a series of robberies throughout Depression- ridden Oklahoma and West Texas, has also just been made into a United Artists movie. Pauline Kael, writing in the New Yorker, has praised the film and noted its faithfulness to the book, saying "The movie has the ambiance of the novel

Charleston man claims he can control the weather

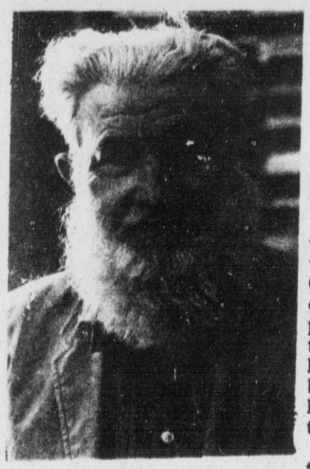
Persons in Charleston and a 15- mile surrounding area only have two more days to get in on James Edward Allen's ability to control the weather.

After midnight Friday, Allen, 59, is going to "retire" from the weather control business for about six months to a year, or until he receives notice from enough people who believe in his self- claimed power.

Allen claims he can, with his powers, prevent an approaching bad storm from striking within a 15- mile radius of his home near Charleston. Although he won't relate how he does this phenomenal act, he claims it is a fact and that he has convinced his family and some others that he has this power.

When his mother died about 29 years ago, Allen says he inherited her power to control the clouds and break them up. When asked why he inherited this ability, he said he was born on the 13th — an unlucky day — and only a person born on an unlucky day can inherit this power from him, he claims. So far, Allen has not found anyone to whom he can pass the power when he is gone.

Sikeston is right on the outskirts of Allen's self-claimed radiusm of control. He claims that as storms approach he can make them break up and skirt 15 miles around Charleston. He has weaker power over another five miles, making a total radius of 20 miles.



James Edward Allen

He claims to have diverted many tornatoes and bad storms. In relating one incident which occurred about 20 years ago, he said he knew a tornado was going to strike Cape Girardeau and do considerable damage, so he left his home and traveled between Benton and Cape Girardeau to divert the storm. He claims that he succeeded by making the storm miss Cape Girardeau, although it hit Jackson.

Allen, who was born in Poplar Bluff and grew up in the New Madrid, Matthews and Charleston areas, lives about four miles northwest of Charleston on a farm.

He invites people to come and watch him perform his weather control act, but says all anyone will see is him looking up at the clouds, and then see the clouds breaking up and going around to either side.

"What I have to say I say to myself," Allen said, adding he can't tell anyone what that is.

Allen would like people who believe in his power to write him at P.O. Box 326, Charleston, Mo. 63834. He will continue with his control powers until May 31. After that, he is retiring until he knows whether enough people believe in his ability and want him to continue or protect their property.

No attempt has been made to prove or disprove the validity of Allen's claim, so the reader must in this case make his own decision.

Sales tax committee presents campaign plan

MALDEN — The City Council Tuesday night voted to retain Metropolitan Insurance Co. to provide hospitalization insurance coverage for city employes. The decision was made after the council heard a report from the insurance committee.

The sales tax committee presented a program to be used during the next two weeks in the campaign to secure a one-cent sales tax for the city. The council also agreed to spend $50 for advertising.

Dick Beall, Chamber of Commerce manager, presented a check for $325 to be applied toward the purchase price of a new ambulance. This amount was collected from the use of the present ambulance in the last two weeks.

An ordinance was passed to erect two stop signs at the intersection of Laclede and Rogers Streets.

The two property owners of a gravel road along the railroad tracks between Laclede and Main Streets asked the city not to put any more gravel on the road or do further grading as they are trying to close the road to prevent racing.

The council agreed to abide by the request since the road is privately owned and has never been turned over to the city.

Fulbright career nears end

WASHINGTON (AP) — James William Fulbright, an international-minded senator from insular Arkansas, devoted much of his now-ending legislative career to foreign affairs and did not hesitate to let his views be known.

Three presidents—Democrats John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson and Republican Richard M. Nixon—felt the sting of criticism he delivered as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for an unprecedented 15 years.

Fulbright, 69, became a lame duck Tuesday when Gov. Dale Bumpers defeated him soundly in the Arkansas Senate primary.

His likely successor as committee chairman will be 74-year-old John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., a consistent supporter of Nixon administration military budgets and a backer of foreign aid since the Truman days.

Fulbright's relations with American presidents were more tempestuous.

Truman dismissed Fulbright as an "overeducated Oxford S.O.B." when the then-Senate freshman proposed that the president resign after the Republicans captured control of Congress in 1946.

Early in the Kennedy administration, Fulbright pleaded in vain against U.S. sponsorship of the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion by anti-Castro Cuban refugees.

He remained voted in favor of the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution that spurred major American involvement in the Vietnam war, but said later he regretted that vote, which he said was based on false information. During the late 1960s he was an increasingly outspoken critic of the American role in Vietnam.

Nixon's Vietnamization policy also drew Fulbright's wrath. With the Vietnam experience in the background, Fulbright became the Senate's most influential advocate of limiting U.S. commitments abroad and curtailing foreign aid.

Fulbright always sought a larger voice in foreign affairs from the Senate beyond the explicit constitutional duty to advise and consent to treaties.

He entered the Senate after education at the University of Arkansas, which he headed as president for three years; as a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford.

Washington report

Progress made on education legislation

By STUART SYMINGTON
U.S. Senator—Missouri

The Senate has passed a comprehensive bill charting the Federall course in the next four years for assistance to education, primarily at the elementary and secondary levels.

The bill extends through 1978 all programs authorized by the Elementary and Secondar Education Act of 1965, including assistance to schools for the education of disadvantaged children, for school library resources, for bilingual education, and for supplementary education services, such as guidance and counseling.

This legislation updates the formula under which funds for educationally deprived children are distributed. In order also to simplify administration and give greater leeway to state and local school officials in the use of federal money, a provision is included for consolidation of several programs.

A new program is authorized to strengthen reading skills in the elementary grades with funding for reading improvement demonstration projects, special emphasis projects, reading training on public television, and reading training grants to colleges and universities.

The bill also would continue the impact aid program, which authorizes assistance to school districts for the education of students whose parents live and/or work on federal property to compensate those districts at least in part in lieu of taxes for the education of the Federally connected students.

While focusing on better education of youth, the Senate bill does not overlook the needs of those adults who have not obtained the minimum of a high school diploma. It would extend the provisions of the Adult Education Act of 1966, under which some 6,000 Missourians last year received their high school equivalency certificates.

The Federal commitment to special education for the handicapped is also reaffirmed. Because of the higher cost of education for the handicapped, the Federal government shares this expense with states and local communities. As passed by the Senate, the legislation would provide special research funds and support graduate training programs, demonstration projects, and grants- in- aid to encourage the movement of educational services to handicapped children.

Senate- approved provisions in this legislation would require that all alternatives be exhausted before busing is implemented. It also directs that busing not cross school district lines unless it is determined that those lines were drawn or maintained for the purpose of segregation; that a student not be bused further than the school next closest to his home unless the courts find this is constitutionally required; and affirms the authority of the judicial system to enforce the Constitution.

This legislation now must go to a House- Senate conference to work out the differences between the Senate version and a bill passed earlier by the House of Representatives.

While I do not advocate that the major funding for schools come from the national government, Federal funds can and should assist states and localities in special and innovative educational programs.

Penney Reports Potential Safety Problem On Bicycles Manufactured In Austria

JCPenney has reported a potential safety problem involving the front fork of approximately 110,000 bicycles manufactured in Austria by Juniorwerke Ing Franz Weiss.

Manager G. R. Bowen of the Penney store at Sikeston, Mo. said the problem may be present on 10-speed men's JCPenney bicycles which were sold through stores and catalogs starting in late 1972.

Mr. Bowen pointed out that the problem involves only bicycles at a $69.95 retail, yellow in color, and bikes at an $84.95 retail red in color. Only bikes sold prior to December 1973 are affected. These bikes will have a "made in Austria" decal affixed to the post which supports the seat. Bicycles with chrome-plated forks do not present any problem, he said.

The Penney manager has urged customers who determine that they have bicycles with the potential fork problem to stop riding them immediately. Customers should return the bicycles for free fork replacement either to the nearest Penney store selling bicycles or to the in-store catalog sales center from which the individual bicycle was purchased. Catalog customers who purchased by mail should contact the Customer Service Section at the nearest Penney Catalog DistributionCenter in either Atlanta, Ga., or Milwaukee, Wis.

Letters to the Editor

April 8, 1974

The Editor
Washington Post
1150 15th Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C. 20005

Dear Editor:

You recently received from United Features Syndicate a column by Jack Anderson that contains so many inaccuracies and draws so many wrong conclusions that I feel compelled to respond.

The column begins with a false note -- a comment that the mails have been moving slower since the Postal Service came into being three years ago.

This is not true. Our own tests and those of the General Accounting Office and various newspapers have indicated a marked improvement in mail service within the past year or so.

Mr. Anderson erroneously states that since 1971 "about half" of United States Postal Service contracts have been awarded on a non-competitive basis.

This is not true. Data for the only full year of procurement on record (Fiscal Year 1973) shows that only 24.8 per cent of Postal Service contracts were sole source, and justification was made for going sole source in each case.

Mr. Anderson contends that there were overruns totaling "an extra estimated $100 million" on Postal Service contracts, including $60 million to "eleven favored companies."

We do not know the source of these figures and cannot reconcile them, but cost overruns of this magnitude have not occurred.

Of 26 specific contracts about which inquiry was made by Mr. Anderson's staff, 11 were awarded before the Postal Service took over operation of the old Post Office Department on July 1, 1971. There were cost overruns on four of the contracts, two of which pre-dated the Postal Service. The total amount of the overruns was $9.7 million -- of which $8.5 million was on old Post Office Department contracts.

Mr. Anderson's incidental qualifier that "some of the additional costs were legitimate, with needed work being done for the extra money" does little to correct the false impression he has already created.

Adding extra work to initial contracts has been by far the principal reason for cost growth. So long as the Postal Service is involved in research and development efforts involving breakthroughs in the state - of - the - art, as is the case with some of the contracts cited by Mr. Anderson, there will continue to be some degree of costs exceeding the original contracted price.

The United States Postal Service is the largest civilian branch of the Federal Government and one of the biggest businesses in the world. It has an annual budget of more than $10 billion, a work force of over 700,000 employees and it handles 90 billion pieces of mail a year.

The overwhelming bulk of that mail is now sorted manually, as it has been since the founding of the republic. We are engaged in a massive research and development effort to bring sophisticated mechanization to the Postal Service. In the early stages of this effort we will have to take some risks as we plow new ground.

Mr. Anderson's column specifically mentions contracts the Postal Service awarded to seveal companies for development of improved facer- cancelers, air cullers, optical character readers, multi- position letter sorters, and bulk mail facilities.

The facts involving these contracts are:

1) Improved Facer-Canceler — A contract was awarded in 1968 to National Cash Register as a result of competitive procurement, for development of an improved facing and canceling machine. As a result of the contract, three advanced development models of facer canceler equipment were built and are presently in operation. Unit 1 is located in the Northern Virginia facility at Merrifield, Unit 2 is located at the Postal Laboratory in Rockville, Md., as part of an experimental integrated mail preparation system, and Unit 3 is under test at the St. Petersburg, Fla., plant of Electronic Communications, Inc., a subsidiary of NCR.

Due to the initial success of these units, the Postal Service in 1972 went into a two-phased program for further development of facer- canceler equipment. There were 12 service test models produced and nine of these were placed into service and are still being tested prior to production of 14 later models. The contractor has been on a stop-work order since September of 1973. The Postal Service's Research and Engineering Department is evaluating whether to continue this program or develop other alternatives.

This delay in development of the new facer- canceler required that the Postal Service seek other sources to fill immediate needs for facer cancelers. Therefore, in December, 1973, we purchased 180 Mark II facer - cancelers from Pitney- Bowes to augment the approximately 700 machines of this model in service. Deliveries are to commence in September, 1974.

2) Air Cullers -- The Postal Service awarded a competitive contract in 1968 to the Burroughs Corporation for development of culling equipment. This work led to the concept of an air culler and two machines were produced and tested.

From the early results of the testing of these two machines, it was determined in 1972 to procure 14 additional air cullers for further testing and evaluation in a live mail environment and a data-package which would be used in future competitive procurements. All 14 machines under this contract have been produced. Seven have not been shipped to post offices until the results are evaluated of those air cullers now being field tested as part of a mail preparation line, rather than as a stand- alone unit. This development work has not yet produced the desired results.

3) Optical Character Readers -- The initial undertaking for development of the first- generation optical character reader was awarded competitively to Philco Corporation in 1960, for approximately a half- million dollars. This research and development effort continued over the years, resulting in expenditure of a total of about $17 million. The final result was deployment of the first 10 OCR-I's in post offices. Ten more OCR-I's were purchased from Philco- Ford Corporation in 1969 for approximately $8 million. These 20 OCR-I's are located in 13 cities and are used daily in the processing of mail.

In 1969, Philco- Ford was awarded a contract for the development of the second generation of optical character reader -- OCR-II – to fill the time gap in the generation of OCR equipment until the Postal Service Advanced OCR program could produce an engineering model. The OCR II installed in Boston was accepted in March, 1972. The final cost of this equipment and related services was approximately $6 million.

At no time was there any intent to await the results of the Philco- Ford development of the OCR before proceeding with undertaking an Advanced OCR which was developed by IBM and is now in use in New York City.

The OCR I in Boston can only process outgoing mail but is used an average of seven (7) hours per day, six (6) days per week. The average sorting rate is 30,000 pieces per hour. The OCR II, with more capability, averages 11-15 hours per day, depending on volume of mail available, five days a week and 33,000 pieces per hour, outgoing primary and secondary mail.

The two OCR I's in New York average 19.2 hours of operation per day. The Advanced OCR (AOCR), made by IBM, operates an average of 20 hours per day, six (6) days a week, handling 59,000 pieces per hour.

4) Multi- Position Letter Sorting Machines -- In July, 1971, the Maxson Electonics Corporation was awarded a competitive fixed- price contract to produce letter sorting machines. This was done as an effort by the Postal Service to break away from the single source that had previously produced most letter sorting machines. During the period of performance, the Maxson Corporation received progress payments amounting to $5.04 million. Due to financial difficulties, the Corporsation was unable to complete the contract and it was terminated for default on February 23, 1973. The defaulted contract is now the subject of litigation between the contractor and the Postal Service. The Postal Service has contracted with another company to complete the project. All of the money paid to Maxson will result in workable machines.

5) Bulk Mail Facilities -- The contract cost plus the contingencies for the New York Bulk and Foreign Mail Facility will total approximately $155 million. Contrary to Mr. Anderson's allegation, there have been no cost overruns.

As of January 1, 1974, actual expenditures for the New York Bulk Mail Center have not exceeded estimated costs. Based on current conditions, we do not anticipate any overrun.

On the other 20 bulk mail centers, we have done cost-to-completion estimates as of January 1 which indicate that the national bulk mail system will be completed within the original estimate.

It should be further clarified that the company identified by Mr. Anderson as the builder was, in fact, the architect- engineer.

Mr. Anderson quotes from a memorandum distributed to the top staff of the Postal Service in May of 1972, which was critical of some procurement practices that had long existed. What he does not say is that the same memorandum, issued by the Deputy Postmaster General, designated a headquarters committee to take action to improve purchasing and contracting procedures. The Committee's final report, dated August 21, 1972 concluded: "As a result of the activity of this committee, several improvements have already occurred, namely better communications between requiring and contracting offices, more complete statements of work, and careful justification of requirements."

What Mr. Anderson has done is to take a number of contracts and through innuendo, half- truth and misinformation, use them to imply mismanagement by the Board of Governors and the present management.

I believe the public should be apprised of the facts, and that is the purpose of this letter.

Sincerely yours.
E. T. Klassen
Postmaster General
Washington, D.C. 20260

EDITORS: Following is Jack Anderson's answer to postmaster General Klassen's letter:

We held up our story 10 days, as Klassen well knows, to permit the Postal Service to respond to our charges. We considered this a reasonable time for its $3.2 million- a-year public relations apparatus to assemble its alibis.

Although we never received the detailed reply which Klassen is now peddling, we spoke to postal officials throughout our investigation and carefully checked the facts they gave us. Most of our information, indeed, came from the Postal Service's own files.

First of all, Klassen disputes our comment that the mails are slower. The readers are perhaps the best judges as to whether their mail service has improved.

Of course, Klassen doesn't challenge the charge that postal rates have gone up. The price of mailing letters has zoomed an incredible 66 per cent since the Klassen crew took over in 1971. During the same period, 900 small post offices have been closed and afternoon mail pick- ups have stopped in many areas.

Klassen uses bureaucratic sleight- of- hand to attack our statement that "about half" of the postal contracts have been awarded on a noncompetitive basis since 1971. To reduce the figure to 24.8 per cent, he includes all the work that the Postal Service contracted with other government agencies. Obviously, we referred in our story only to the contracts with commercial firms.

But lest there be any doubt, we are happy to cite the exact, confidential figures from the Postal Service files. In the 1973 fiscal year, the Postal Service awarded 623 contracts over $5,000 in value. Of these, 244 went to other government agencies and, therefore, have no part in our story. Only 111 contracts were formally advertised for competitive bid. Another 84 contracts were negotiated, with some price or design competition. But 145 contracts were awarded without bids to single contractors. The remaining 39 contracts can't be nailed down.

In 1971 and 1972, the figures are even more unfavorable to the Postal Service. We were charitable, in other words, when we stated that "about half" of the contracts had been awarded without competition.

Klassen professes to be puzzled about the source of our figures on cost overruns. We are happy to enlighten him. The figures came straght out of his own files. If he has any doubt about this, we will be happy to furnish him with a copy of his own computer printouts listing the sole-source contracts complete with cost overruns.

In his recitation of the "facts" concerning individual contracts, Klassen does little but confirm our story. He admits that delays in the development of a new facer-canceler "required that the Postal Service seek other sources to fill immediate needs for facer- cancelers." This is what we had reported.

He admits, as we had said, that the work on new air cullers "has not produced the desired results." He also confirms the details of our reporting on the Maxson contract.

He disputes our charge that the expensive new optical character readers in Boston and New York run no more than a few hours a day but qualifies his statement by adding, "depending on the volume of mail available." That is the point. There is seldom enough mail available to run these machines more than a few hours a day, a fact which was confirmed by one of Klassen's own spokesmen before our story was written.

The Postal Service has invested $17 million in these machines only to find that they may not have a post office which generated enough mail for them to be used efficiently.

Indeed, Klassen's heralded modernization and mechanization program hasn't produced a single new machine that can yet be used on a national basis. The Pitney -Bowes machine, which he has been obliged to purchase in place of the fancy new machine he wanted, dates back to the 1950s.

Klassen's statement that "there are no cost overruns" in the Bulk Mail project is preposterous. The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee estimates that the project will cost at least $1 billion. The Postal Service estimated the cost at $900 million.

At the Secaucus project alone, the overruns were rampant. Since the Postal Service bought swampland to build on, additional costs were incurred when the pilings for the building had to be sunk deeper than expected. Then the pilings struck methane gas. The smell was overwhelming and the gas dangerous, so the field had to be drained. More overruns.

The Postal Service ingeniously avoids calling these "overruns" by what contractors call the "depreciation shell game." They write off depreciation on equipment not being used because of project delays and use the figures to offset additional cost. Another trick used to avoid admitting "overruns" is entering into open -ended contracts which can be padded without embrassing comparsion to the origianl cost estimates.

We made one minor error, which we are pleased to correct. We identified Lester B. Knight incorrectly as a builder. Klassen more accurately describes him as an architect -engineer. But what Klassen failed to mention is that this contractor, who has benefitted from doing business with the Postal Service, is a close personal friend of Klassen's.

The Postmaster General criticizes us for not citing a portion of a memo, which said the Postal Service would try to do something about sole -source contracts. The committee report, Klassen notes, cited several improvements.

Unfortunately, we didn't have access to the final report although we tried for ten days to get it from the Postal Service. The fact remains that the report still hasn't been implemented.

Klassen's defense, in brief, is constructed on a tumbling house of cards. We will present our evidence to the Senate Investigations Committee. It will be interesting to see whether Klassen will join us in urging a full investigation.

2. Card of Thanks

The family of Woodrow Yant wishes to thank all who had a part in helping in our time of sorrow. - The Nunnelee's, the loving people of our Churches who served the dinners, the neighbors who came and stood by, our associate pastor, brother Gene Hinze, and our good pastor, Brother Presson, whose words of comfort in the beautiful service were so very precious to us. We don't always know the "why" but we do know that God's ways are best.

The Woodrow Yant Family

The family or Robert Rister wants to take this opportunity to thank all our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during our bereavement. The doctors and nurses at the Delta Community Hospital who did all they could. The Blodgett Baptist Church, to all who sent flowers, food and cards. To the Sikeston Senior High School student body, Nunnelee Funeral Home and especially to the Reverend Jimmie Edmondson and Otto Dvorak.

Bond, legislature argue over funding local governments

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The controversial tax on household goods has been repealed but a battle appears likely between the governor and legislative leaders over whether the state will reimburse political subdivisions for the lost revenue.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond said Tuesday when he signed the repealer that he didn't intend to include in his 1975-76 budget requests any state money to reimburse cities, counties school districts, police districts and fire protection districts.

Taking money from the state treasury for the reimbursement, Bond said would "ensure a statewide tax increase by 1976."

However, the governor emphasized he supported the repeal, but felt the state didn't have enough money to pay for it.

The controversy over how to fund the repealer caused lengthy debate on the House and Senate and the two houses finally agreed to have the state make the reimbursement by having the political subdivisions report to the state Tax Commission how much revenue they will lose.

The estimates on the loss run between $6 million and $14 million a year.

Bond said a 1973 law providing uniform assessment of property at 33 1-3 per cent of true cash value and a new law tightening up on auto tax collections would help make up the loss to political subdivisions.

The sponsor of the repealer, Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, said he would write the governor saying Bond has a "legal and moral" obligation to include the money in his budget because "that's what the bill says and he signed it in that form."

If the governor does not include it in his budget, Cason said, he would ask the Senate Appropriations Committee to include it. Bond still could eliminate the money through a veto.

However, an appropriations veto, Cason said, would be an attempt to amend the law through an appropriations bill, which is unconstitutional.

If the legislature goes ahead and appropriates the money for the reimbursement, Bond said, he would not "look upon it with any great deal of enthusiasm," but he wouldn't say whether he would veto it.

Cason said the items Bond mentioned as giving more revenue to political subdivisions "would just keep up with inflationary trends."

The household goods tax, criticized as unfair because assessors don't dispute a person's claim about the value of his household property, will be repealed effective next Jan. 1. The repeal was authorized by the voters in 1972.

The tax applied to furniture, clothing, jewelry and other household property.

Bond also signed a bill to increase workmen's compensation benefits from $70 to $90 a week for total disability and from $35 to $45 a week for partial and permanent disability. The bill, effective Aug. 11, sets up a legislative committee to study workmen's compensation laws and recommend changes.

The new law covers all public employes. It applies to all employers of more than five workers. Exempted will be employers of farm workers or domestic servants if the employers have payrolls of less than $1,000 a year.

The governor now has signed 73 bills and vetoed 10. He has until June 30 to act on 18 others, although an aide to the governor said he would act on all the bills by June 7.

Bond also signed into law a measure making it a misdemeanor to [illegible] with up to a $500 fine and 2-5 years in prison for willful failure to file a tax return or income tax return or to pay the taxes.

SeMo stars

Fat McClarty, who battled his way into a starting position with the Southeast Missouri State University baseball team this spring after transferring from Memphis State University, finished as the Indians RBI leader with 0.

The former Missouri high school all state star from Lilbourn started out the season with a red hot bat and led the team in hitting most of the campaign and finished with a .316 mark.

Randy Schmick of Illmo-Scott City led SEMO in hitting with a .382 mark, paced the team with the top number of at bats with 102, led the teams in runs with 22, hits with 39 and doubles with six. He is a freshman.

Rick Blankenship of Sikeston fashioned a 4-3 season record for the Trible, posting a 3.09 ERA, allowing 12 runs and 33 hits during his 35 innings of work.

Trotline questions

JEFFERSON CITY — A trotline often is called a "troutline" in Missouri, though it almost never takes a trout, but whatever it is called, it is a problem to those who enforce wildlife regulations -- and to those who fish under the regulations.

Basically, a trotline is a length of line from which are suspended no more than 33 hooks, staged not less than two feet apart and trotlines may not be attached together to extend the hook total.

Oddly, the largest trout ever taken on a hook in Missouri, was taken on a trotline ("troutline"). It was a 15 pound, six ounce fish taken in 1971 in Lake Taneycomo.

Perhaps the most widely asked question about trotlines currently is whether resident fishermen 70 or over, who can sportfish free, can use them without a permit.

Another question is whether the person whose name and address is on the required tag on the trotline needs to be present when the line is run or can anyone run the line legally.

The answer is that the person must be present, though he can have help if the help is properly licensed. The present regulation is worded to say that labels must bear the name and address of the "person using such equipment."

Contrary to one popular misconception, it is legal to use bluegill and other sunfish (but not crappie) as trotline bait. No game fish, as defined in the Wildlife Code, may be used as bait on a trotline.

No person may fish with more than 33 hooks, so a man pole and line fishing with a single hook could only have 32 hooks on his trotline.

And trotlines must be run at least once every 24 hours. Trotlines and limb or bank lines sometimes are abandoned and can become traps,either for wildlife or for boaters.

There have been many reports of herons or other birds being hooked by a baited hook, exposed when the water went down. Those same hooks are a hazard to boaters, especially on rivers.

CHS names new coaches

Welch has coached at St. James high the past two seasons, recording a 11-9 record.

CHS will open its 1974 season against Doniphan.

Carbo was honored Tuesday for his performances in helping the Red Sox into the East Division lead. He had 13 hits, including two homers, in 29 times at bat, a .448 average. He also drove in 10 runs, two which won games.

Dodgers club Cards, 11-5

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If the Los Angeles Dodgers don't set team West Coast records for offense, Manager Walter Alston thinks he may miss his guess.

The 62-year-old Alston watched his National League club pound out 20 hits in an 11-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night and afterward acknowledged it has such potential.

"I guess it's the best we've ever had," he conceded of an attack featuring two home runs, two doubles and 16 singles.

In further reference to an avalanche that boosted Dodger scoring to 281 runs in 49 games, Alston quipped wryly, "I'll settle for that many in the next 50 games."

Ken McMullen and Joe Ferguson, who smacked two-run homers, were leaders of an offense engulfing St. Louis despite Reggie Smith's three-run homer.

Ron Cey chipped in four singles to the steady barrage and Bill Buckner, Bill Russell and Steve Garvey had three hits each.

"In the last five or six games the starting pitching hasn't been that good," Alston observed, "but maybe by the time we cool off with the bats it'll be better."

The Dodger rampage, slowed Monday during a 7-2 loss to the Cards, resumed Tuesday night at the expense of ex-Los Angeles bonus pitcher Alan Foster, 1-5, and four successors.

An inning later Russell and Willie Crawford singled around a strikeout and Ferguson dispatched a Foster fast ball for a 5-0 lead after Crawford was out stealing and Garvey singled Russell home.

Three more runs established an 8-2 Los Angeles cushion in the next inning, but starting pitcher Don Sutton was raked by Smith's homer in the fifth and gave way to knuckle baller Charlie Hough, 5-1.

"I just put two or three balls in the wrong place," said the slim Sutton, who left with his team ahead 8-5.

"Charlie's pitched well," noted Alston in respect to Hough, who stopped the Cards on one hit over 2 1-3 innings before Mike Marshall mopped up.

"At the end of last year, in the winter and during spring training he indicated he could throw the knuckleball over the plate," the Dodger manager added.

Left-hander Tommy John, 71, is scheduled to pitch for the Dodgers tonight against righthander Sonny Sieberg, 4-3, in the windup to a three-game series.

NEW YORK — The Portland Trail Blazers officially named Bill Walton, UCLA's three-time All-American, as the No. 1 pick in the National Basketball Association draft.

NJC title game set

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Undefeated Meramec of St. Louis, Mo., faces Miami Dade North of Florida tonight in the championship bracket of the National Junior College Baseball Tournament.

Meramec kept its winning streak intact with a 5-2 victory over Anne Arundel of Maryland Tuesday night while Miami Dade North crushed top-ranked San Jacinto of Texas 19-10. It was the second loss for each of the losers. Miami right fielder Steve Cook led his team with a tourney-record three home runs in three trips to the plate to collect five RBIs.

Shortstop Steve Viefhaus set a tourney record with his fourth homer, a solo shot in the fifth inning.

Meramec pushed across two runs in the second inning and another in the third on a triple by John Schilling and an infield grounder, and added one for insurance in the ninth on a walk, sacrifice bunt and a single.

Pistons draft MU's Eberhard

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Eleven basketball players from Big Eight schools, led by forwards Al Eberhard of Missouri and Scott Wedman of Colorado who went in the first round, have been selected by the National Basketball Association's 18 teams.

Eberhard was taken by the Detroit Pistons, Wedman by the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

Other Big Eight choices and the rounds in which they were selected:

Robert Wilson, Iowa State forward, third, by Houston; Gary Link, Missouri forward, sixth, by Buffalo; Larry Williams, Kansas State forward, sixth, Milwaukee; Kevin Fitzgerald, Oklahoma forwardguard, seventh, Houston; Oklahoma forward Tom Holland, eighth, Phoenix; Colorado guard Lee Haven, ninth, Portland; Oklahoma forward Ted Evans, ninth, Phoenix; Kansas State guard Lon Kruger, ninth, Atlanta; Nebraska forward Brendy Lee, tenth, Atlanta.

Football dropped

Gideon became the second school in Southeast Missouri to drop football from its athletic program. The Bulldog girdiron teams have been rather easy prey of other teams in the district.

The first school to announce its dropping of football was Delta C-7 of Deering last season.

The loss of Gideon has left the Bootheel division of the Southeast Missouri football league with only three teams. Illmo- Scott City has been the dominating team of the league for years. The other teams remaining are South Pemiscot of Steele and Doniphan, who only picked up the sport last season.

Gideon's decision to drop the sport was based on the fact that only about a half dozen boys expressed interest in playing at a recent signup.

Pan American to offer special travel plans

CHICAGO -- Pan American World Airways will offer three special plans this summer to allow travelers the maximum flexibility to arrange their itineraries both before and during their European vacation.

The program, called "Europe on a Pass," features guaranteed accommodations in high quality hotels in 87 European cities at $12.50 per person per night, double occupancy, or $17.50 for a single room. The rates include rooms with private bath (or shower), service charges and taxes and continental breakfasts.

The Eurotelpass must be obtained before departure. Reservations at participating hotels can be made in advance, but all that is necessary is that the passenger check into the hotel by 3 p.m. The program will be in effect through Sept. 30.

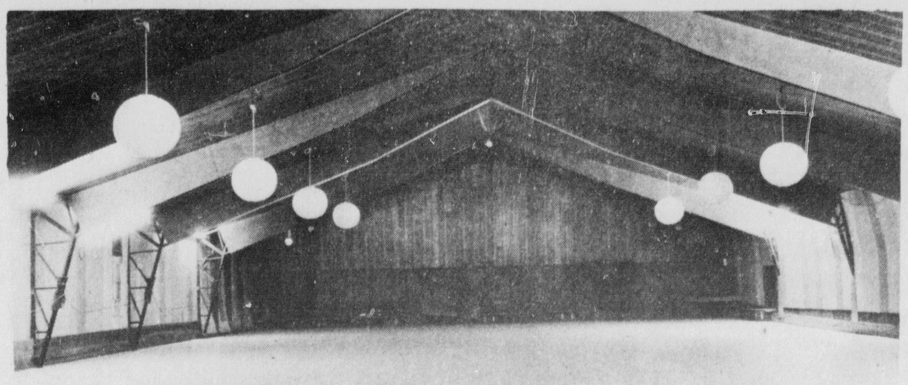
The participating hotels are located in Austria, Belgium, England, France, Germany, Gibraltar, Italy, Lebanon, Luxemburg, Morocco, The Netherlands, Portugal, Scotland, Spain, Switzerland and Wales.

For every four Eurotelpasses purchased, recipients receive a Eurotourpass good for sightseeing tours in such cities as Amsterdam, Barcelona, Florence, Frankfurt, Lisbon, London, Madrid, Milan, Naples, Paris, Rome, Seville, Venice and Vienna.

Also part of the program is the Eurodrivepass, which offers low weekly rates for self-drive rental cars in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Lebanon, Morocco, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

And for those who would prefer to travel by train in Europe, Eurailpass rates vary from $150 for 21 days of first class travel to $300 for three months of travel. Special rates also for eight days of second class travel to $115 for one month of first class travel.

Further information is given in Pan Am's "Europe on a Pass" brochure, available from Pan Am offices and travel agents in the Midwest and Canada.



Roller rink will be remodeled

Sikeston Roller Rink, 840 Anderson St., will undergo remodeling this summer. The building will get a new floor and air conditioning and a partition will be removed.

Owner explains remodeling plans

Sikeston Roller Rink, 840 Anderson St., will undergo remodeling this summer, according to owner Zural Satterfield of Dexter Route Two.

Satterfield said a solid plastic floor will be laid over the building's present floor to deaden the sound of the skates. The building will be completely air conditioned.

A partition will be removed to open the skating area to 70 feet by 150 feet.

In addition to the building improvements, Satterfield said, higher quality skates will be offered.

The improvements are expected to be completed by early fall. The rink will remain open for business while the remodeling is in progress, Satterfield said.

Shoe firm assists scouting program

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Special assistance to the Southeast Missouri Council of Boy Scouts of America has been extended by Brown Shoe Co., through its Brown Group, Inc. Charitable Trust, with its annual check.

Brown Shoe Co. operates plants in Bernie, Charleston, Piedmont, Caruthersville, Potosi and Ironton, all of which are located within the Southeast Missouri Council area. The company encourages its personnel to be active in the Boy Scout program and over the years many plant managers have been active on the local and council level. The management of Brown Shoe Co. has often voiced the company's support of the ideals, goals, programs and each boy who is active in the scout program.

The support of scouting by corporate groups gives additional leadership to the financial program, according to Southeast Misssouri Council officials, who said corporate financial and moral support is needed to expand scouting programs to accomodate the increasing number of boys and make scouting attractive to all age groups.

'Market rally must prove self'

The rally was based, they note, on a belief that short term interest rates are peaking.

A further increase in the cost of short term money, however, could trigger a series of down markets; and margin calls could result, with an ensuing selling climax.

Such an event, it is stressed, could signal a market turn. For if there are bargains now, there indeed would be more and better bargains after a selling climax than before.

Aggressive investors, of course, are continually searching for "current" buys and "future" buys. Argus Research Corp. scrutinizes the aluminum industry currently, though defers making recommendations at this time.

"Prices of the common stocks of primary aluminum smelting companies dropped sharply on news that the Jamaican government proposes to significantly raise bauxite mining taxes and royalties.

Too many variables remain unresolved to permit a "fine tuned" estimate of the real impact of this proposal on the share earnings of individual aluminum companies:

1. Will other bauxite producers --- Australia, Haiti, Guyana -- follow suit or not? 2. What will be the U. S. and Canadian federal tax treatment of such added costs? 3. Will the market truly absorb a pass-through of the higher costs, as we believe it will? ...

Eagleton attacks inadequate postal service in Missouri

WASHINGTON — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., has confronted Postmaster General E. T. Klassen with reports of slow and reduced postal service in Missouri.

During an appropriations subcommittee hearing May 23 to oversee the postal service, Eagleton cited results of a study completed by his office which showed that there was no difference between the speed of air mail and first class letters when sent to various cities in Missouri.

"Shouldn't the public be made aware of exactly what they are getting for their air mail money?" Eagleton said.

A postal service representative replied that the study did reveal a problem. He said air mail should get next day delivery while first class mail should get second day delivery, then added, "We will check into why this is not happening."

Eagleton also inquired into reports that mid- day pickup and deliveries have been eliminated from several rural areas in Missouri, including Huntsville, Fulton, Birch Tree, Stover, Keytesville, Licking, Brunswick, Mexico, Camdenton, Glasgow, Moberly and Salisbury.

Eagleton brought up the speed of first class delivery and mentioned that one problem route was between Joplin and St. Louis.

"It took one piece of mail 119 hours to travel from Joplin to St. Louis -- a distance of approximately 250 miles," Eagleton said. "That is a pace of a little less than two miles an hour. As I recall, most people walk at approximately three miles an hour."

Eagleton reported that only 88 per cent of the letters in his study reached their destinations within the postal service's own delivery standards. The postal service claimed that 95 per cent- plus reach destinations within the standards.

Earlier, in a letter to Walter Carson, senior representative of the Government Relations Department of the U.S. Postal Service, Eagleton said he was disappointed with the responses the Postal Service was giving constituent complaints.

"Nowhere in your responses do you justify to these people the reasons they must pay higher rates for decreased services," Eagleton said.

In answer to the letter, Carson apologized for the inadequate responses and said, "Every attempt will be made to direct our responses to the points raised in your constituents' mail."

Eagleton said he intended to follow these matters closely to be sure Missourians get the service they are entitled to.

What's the law?

By JACK STRAUSS, LL. B.

Herbie normally went over his face twice while shaving if any beard was left after the first time. While on vacation, however, he decided to lessen the ordeal by standing further and further away from his razor. The result? By the time his vacation was over, he had grown what he considered to be rather a handsome beard.

His boss, however, didn't share his enthusiasm. In fact, citing company policy, his boss told him that unless he shaved it off, he couldn't keep his job.

"What do you mean it wasn't with good cause," responded Herbie. "The Constitution gives every man the right to wear a beard. And if a beard is good enough for the Constitution, saving mine was good enough reason to leave my job."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit bearded Herbie to collect unemployment benefits?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a beard for a man is an expression of his personality and a symbol of masculinity, authority and wisdom. On the other hand, noted the judge, it's also a symbol of nonconformity and rebellion.

Inconsistent as they may be, concluded the judge, such symbols, under appropriate circumstances, merit Constitutional protection. And, to deny Herbie unemployment benefits because he insisted upon wearing a beard would be to deny him his protection under the First Amendment.

Charles Hulshof

SAN ANTONIO — Airman Charles E. Hulshof, son of Mrs. Margaret Hulshof of Portageville, Mo., Route Three, was among 13 volunteers who participated in a human performance experiment at the U. S. Air Force School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base.

Airman Hulshof, who had recently completed basic military training at Lackland AFB, underwent 30 hours of intensive training and testing designed to establish a means of measuring and recording the effects of stress on human performance.

The volunteers were given a traditional test battery which included target tracking, problem solving vigilance and short - term memory evaluations. They also took part in a "sudden-alert" study where performance was recorded following sudden awakening.

The airman is scheduled to attend technical training at Sheppard AFB, where he will be trained as a radiologist specialist.

Rochelle Julian

SAN ANTONIO — Airman Rochelle J. Julian, son of Mrs. Hazel Williams of 311 Virginia, New Madrid, Mo., has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB.

The airman has been assigned to the Technical Training Center at Chanute for specialized training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field.

Airman Julian attended Muncie (Ind.) Central High School.

ALAMOGORDO, N. M. -- Airman Julius R. Kershaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kershaw Jr. of Portageville, Mo., Route One, recently participated in a North Atlantic Treaty Organization training exercise in Germany.

Airman Kershaw is an airframe specialist at Holloman AFB with a unit of the 49th Tactical Fighter Wing that deployed to the Euorpean continent for the maneuvers.

The exercise -- "Crested Cap 74" -- was the fifth in a series demonstrating the U. S. contribution to NATO. The deployment also tested Tactical Air Command's ability to react under the "dual-based concept" of tactical air operations.

In early March, 49th F-4 Phantom aircraft and personnel were integrated with their operational host units at Bitburg and Hahn Air Bases where they supported concentrated flight training over the German countryside.

Airman Kershaw is a 1972 graduate of Portageville High School.

As of Oct. 31, 1972, there were 30,828 officers and 1,984 civilians in the police roster in New York. Chicago was next with 13,125 officers and 1,266 civilians.

By MARY NOLEN

This week's column deals with some cool summer salads and how too handle, prepare and arrange them.

Knowing your greens is the beginning of a good salad. Not just lettuce, but leaves of crisp spinach, bright accents like dandelion, beet or mustard tops and watercress. Always buy crisp, fresh greens.

Handle greens with care by just pulling off the outer leaves of the lettuce head (and not too many if they're undamaged) wash greens only as you need them. Drain thoroughly and store in a plastic bag in the refrigerator.

When you are preparing to serve, select only the choice part of greens, discarding stems and cores. Tear greens, do not cut except when shredding or wedges are called for. Belgian endive may be stripped off as whole leaves or cut in slices which will come apart onion- fashion.

Make sure your greens are cold and dry. Pour dressing over the salad at the last minute, using enough to coat the leaves lightly. Toss gently, but well.

Salads should be arranged attractively but simple. On some occasions, however, you might want a salad with more formal eye appeal.

Here are a few salad ideas to try. Hope you like them.

CAESAR SALAD

1 clove garlic, halved
1/3 cup olive oil
8 anchovy fillets, cut up
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dry mustard
freshly ground pepper
1 large or 2 small bunches romaine, washed and chilled
Coddled egg
1 lemon
Garlic croutons
1/3 cup grated cheese

Just before serving, rub large salad bowl with cut clove of garlic. If desired, allow a few small pieces to remain in bowl. Add oil, anchovies, Worcestershire sauce, salt, mustard and pepper; mix thoroughly.

Into salad bowl, tear romaine into bite- size pieces (about 12 cups). Toss until glistening. Break egg onto romaine, squeeze juice from lemon over romaine. Toss until leaves are well coated. Sprinkle croutons and cheese over salad; toss.

Makes six servings.

BRUSSELS SPROUT SALAD

2 pkg. (10 oz. each) frozen Brussel Sprouts
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup salad oil
1½ tsp. chervil leaves
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tomato
Snipped parsley

Cook Brussels sprouts as directed on package; drain, shake vinegar, oil, chervil, salt and pepper in tightly covered jar.

SUMMER FRUIT BOWL

3 medium bananas
4 medium oranges, pared and sectioned (3 cups)
1 cup strawberries, halved
1 cup seedless green grapes, halved
Sour Cream- Honey Dressing

Peel bananas, slice into bowl. Cover completely with other fruit. Cover bowl and chill.

Just before serving, pour dressing over fruit; toss until fruit is well coated.

Makes 10 servings

SOUR CREAM- HONEY DRESSING

Blend one-half cup dairy cream, one tablespoons honey and one tablespoon of orange juice.

DILLY CUCUMBER SALAD

8 cups thinly sliced, pared cucumbers (about 4 medium)
1½ cups dairy sour cream
1 small garlic clove, crushed
2 tbsp. salad oil
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. white wine vinegar
½ tsp. dill weed

Place cucumbers in large bowl. Mix remaining ingredients except dill weed; pour over cucumbers and mix gently. Sprinkle with dill weed. Cover, refrigerate at least one hour. Mix lightly before serving. If desired, sprinkle with snipped parsley.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

FISH FILLETS—Delightful served with a Creole Sauce, steamed rice and lemon broccoli.

Fish fillets make delightful eating

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Fish fillets, lean and white-fleshed, are a nutritious choice for meals for a family, including those members of it who are calorie-watchers. Such frozen varieties as Greenland turbot, ocean perch, Pacific pollock and whiting make thrifty main courses.

The following recipe for Fish Creole is an excellent dish. Served with rice, we found it a hearty offering. A little of the Creole Sauce can garnish the fillets; the rest may be served separately so that eaters can take as much or as little as they like.

FISH CREOLE

1 pound fresh or frozen fish fillets
Salad oil
1 cup rice, cooked and hot
Creole Sauce, see below

If frozen, thaw fillets. Place in a well-oiled shallow baking pan; if fillets are not free of skin, place them skin side down because they will not be turned. Brush fillets with oil. Broil 3 to 4 inches from high heat until fish flakes easily and looks opaque when tested with a fork — 10 to 15 minutes. Serve with rice and Creole Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

CREOLE SAUCE

4 slices bacon, cut into 1-inch crosswise pieces
Large onion, cut in thin strips
Medium green pepper, seeded and cut in thin strips
2 tablespoons flour
1-pound can tomatoes, undrained
½ teaspoon sugar
1 small clove garlic, minced
Salt and pepper to taste
Chili powder to taste, if desired

In a 10-inch skillet, over low heat, cook bacon until crisp; with a slotted spoon remove bacon and drain on brown paper. To bacon fat in skillet add onion and green pepper; cook gently, stirring often, until transparent; with a slotted spoon remove and set aside. To remaining bacon fat in skillet add flour; cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until flour is lightly browned. Stir in bacon, onion and green pepper mixture and the remaining ingredients. Simmer, uncovered and stirring often, for about 10 minutes.

'Beef it up' this summer

BURGER PERFORMANCE

Ground beef is the number one choice for satisfying, economical meals. Most often it's burgers, so to keep interest high varied appeal is important. Here's a tasty alternative to putting patties between bun halves. Mix one pound ground beef with three tablespoons thinly sliced green onions, one teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Spread meat mixture on five of six slices of rye toast covering edges. Place on broiler rack so surface of meat is three inches from heat and broil until browned, six to eight minutes.

SALAD BOOSTER

There are many tempting ways to utilize leftover beef. In the summer, especially, it's smart to perk up a salad with it. This is an efficient way to provide a nutritious meal because the leftover beef contains the same amount of high quality protein and other important nutrients as when first prepared. Cut the cooked beef in julienne strips for salad appeal.

BEEF KABOB KLATCH

Kabobs add excitement to outdoor cookery. Cubes or strips of beef threaded on skewers with fruits or vegetables are easy to ready for the grill and delicious when served from it. Let it be "each to his own" for a fun and fast way to conviviality. The vegetable and fruit pieces should be of the size to cook or heat through, as necessary, by the time the meat is done and not before.

A Lamb Dish That Is Delicious

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

With the advent of spring butcher stores are featuring lamb which can range in price from fairly moderate to astronomical, depending on the cut.

If the cost of a loin chop or steak makes you cringe, try some of the cheaper sections like the breast, neck and shoulder. With a little effort they can be transformed into delicious dishes that often surpass those made from the choicest cuts.

The consumption of lamb dates back to ancient times. When the Jews fled from Egypt, the Lord instructed them to each take a lamb and "eat the flesh in the night roast with fire and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs..."

In 17th-century Europe, they used to stuff lamb with ox suet, larks and olives. In the Middle East they roast the meat with herbs and pistachio nuts. To this day, during the U.N. General Assembly session in New York each fall, Middle East delegates lean heavily on couscous and other lamb dishes when they entertain.

Seasoned flour
1-3rd cup butter
1 clove garlic chopped fine
½ cup chopped onion
1 lb. mushrooms sliced
Salt and pepper to taste
1½ cups sour cream
3 tablespoons dry sherry

Coat lamb with flour. Melt butter, add lamb, garlic and onions and cook till lamb is lightly browned on all sides. Add mushrooms, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over low heat 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add cream and sherry and mix well. Serve with cooked rice. Good with a chilled Beaujolais. Serves 6.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

Remember when you were a child and always making up poems to the four lines "Roses are red, violets blue?" Well, I guess Spring brings out the poet, good and bad in all of us.

Instead of
The grass is green
The sky is blue
If I had more time
I'd spend it with you,
But instead of spending time that way
And thinking of you every day
I find instead to my disgust
I'm cleaning up a house that's mussed
Or chasing dogs out of the shrubs
Or being Den Mother to some Cubs
And then there's dishes in the sink
And a vacuum cleaner on the blink
A yard that needs to be mowed right then
Or a Coffee Corner that must be penned
A budget figured out of the red
Or the covers straightened on a fella's bed.
A meal to cook - a cake to bake
Or someone to take fishing at the lake
Clothes to buy - errands to run
It seems as though I'm never done,
But, if I had the time to spare
And didn't have another care
I'd comb my hair and take my bath
And greet you with a merry laugh
I'd fix your drink and kiss your ear
And whisper words only you should hear
Instead of meeting you at the door
With household problems by the score
Too tired to even be polite
Or care if I start an ugly fight
Only wanting to get away
And grab some rest for another day
But, somehow if there could only be
More time together for you and me
Then I wouldn't do the things I do
Instead, I'd spend all my hours with you.

Salute To The Versatile Tuna

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

About 70 years ago, the California sardine, a mainstay in the diet of many Americans, disappeared from the waters off our West Coast. As local fishermen began search for a replacement, a San Pedro canner sensed the promise of tuna. He processed the first 700 cases of this new canned food in his Los Angeles plant.

Today, more than half a billion pounds of tuna are sold each year in the United States and consumed in numerous guises from casseroles to curries.

So great is the demand that fishing fleets ply the Pacific waters off Nicaragua, El Salvador, Ecuador, Peru, Mexico and Guatemala in quest of tuna.

In these days of soaring food costs, tuna has increased in popularity, since it is more economical than most red meats. The fact that tuna is high in protein and low in calories has placed it high on the lists of dieters.

Canned tuna packed in vegetable oil is a key ingredient in salads. All you need is a can opener, some lettuce and a little mayonnaise, plus some celery to make a tasty dish.

In recent years, the variety of tuna dishes has greatly increased. Today we have tuna curry, chili and tuna loaf.

Hostesses have also discovered that tuna pureed with cream cheese, sour cream or yogurt makes a number of delicious cocktail pates and dips.

We did not know until recently that tuna is also used in making soups, both hot and cold. Mixed with fresh vegetables and a broth, it makes a filling first course or even a main dish for lunch. It is also being served in cold gazpacho. For still another variation, here is a recipe for chilled tuna and avocado soup.

2 ripe avocados
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup light cream
2 cans (6½ or seven ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
1 pint chicken broth
2 teaspoons chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon hot sauce (optional)
Paprika or crumbled corn chips

Peel avocados, removing pits. Cut into pieces and place in electric blender. Add lemon juice and cream. Cover and process at low speed till smooth. Turn into large bowl. Place tuna, chicken broth, onion, salt and hot sauce in electric blender, cover and process at low speed till smooth. Stir in avocado mixture. Chill thoroughly. Serve in small chilled soup bowls with dash of paprika or crumbled corn chips. Serves 10. Good with a chilled Sancerre.

Canned peaches have many uses

For a refreshing dessert, drain fruit cocktail and reserve the syrup. Combine two tablespoons creme de menthe, two tablespoons cornstarch and lemon juice with reserved syrup in saucepan. Heat to thicken, stirring constantly. Add fruit and chill. Place one scoop lime sherbet into meringue shell and top with fruit cocktail sauce.

Canned cling peaches make a dependable dessert as well as a popular one. They're good chilled or heated. They become company fare, cold or hot if dressed with whipped cream with flaked coconut, grated orange or lime rind, candied ginger or grated sweet chocolate.

For a handsome meat garnish, broil or barbecue cling peach halves filled with currant jelly beside chops, hamburger or steaks for the last five minutes of cooking times.

Make a colorful festive garnish for your buffet table by filling golden canned cling peach halves with fruit or vegetable relish. If you like, spice the peaches first. Simmer them gently for five minutes in their syrup with a little vinegar, whole cloves and a stick of whole cinnamon. Cool and drain before using.

For a simple gay dessert youngsters will enjoy, whip chilled, partially set, red, fruit- flavored gelatin and fold in sparkling drained canned fruit cocktail. Serve with gingersnaps or graham crackers.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, May 29, the 149th day of 1974. There are 216 days left in the year.

On this date in 1453, the capital of the Byzantine empire, Constantipole, was captured by the Turks. The date is regarded by some historians as the end of the Middle Ages.

On this date:

In 1736, the American patriot, Patrick Henry, was born in Hanover County, Va.

In 1790, Rhode Island became the last of the 13 original colonies to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1848, Wisconsin joined the Union as the 30th state.

In 1917, the 35th American president, John Kennedy, was born in Brookline, Mass.

In 1943, the Americans defeated the Japanese in the Pacific War battle of Attu in the Aleutians.

In 1953, Edmond Hillary of New Zealand and Tensing Norkay of Nepal became the first climbers to reach the top of the world's highest mountain, Mt. Everest.

Ten years ago: Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said that the Soviet Union had photographed military bases and installations from space satellites.

Today's births: Dancer and choreographer Pearl Lang is 52. Comedienne Beatrice Lillie is 76.

Thought for today: Beware the fury of a patient man. John Dryden, English Poet, 1631-1700.

Country Club lifeguards

Cease-fire may begin by Friday

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger arrived here today en route home from his 33-day marathon peace mission, and a senior American official said the cease-fire agreement he mediated between Israel and Syria would take effect as soon as it is signed on Friday.

Before leaving Jerusalem, the American secretary of state told newsmen the pact may become "a turning point in the history of the Middle East."

The senior official, talking to newsmen as the Kissinger party flew here to report to President Anwar Sadat on the accord, said wounded prisoners of war would be exchanged within 24 hours of the signing in Geneva.

As part of the agreement to separate Israeli and Syrian forces in the Golan Heights, the official said, Israel would give up the Golan city of Quneitra and six or seven villages taken in the 1967 war, as well as land gained last October.

The U.S. official said Israel would retain possession of three strategic hills and all of its settlements, but will yield about "a field and a half" of cultivated land east of the disengagement line.

The text of the accord distributed to newsmen gives Syrian and Israeli negotiators until Wednesday to work out details of the troop separation in the Golan Heights.

Actual disengagement is to begin by next Thursday and completed by June 25. All of the remaining 73 Israeli and 408 Syrian, Moroccan and Iraqi prisoners are to be repatriated by Thursday.

In a protocol accompanying the agreement, Israel and Syria agreed that the U.N. peacekeeping force will number about 1,250 men and will carry out regular inspections.

But the force is not to hamper the Syrian civil administrators who will move into the demilitarized zone between the separated armies.

Kissinger and Sadat are to lunch together during a six-hour stopover before the secretary continues to Washington.

Announcement of the Syrian-Israeli agreement Wednesday did not halt fighting in the Golan Heights, and the Syrian command reported the 80th consecutive day of shelling there.

Premier Golda Meir was presenting the pact to the Israeli parliament today, and Information Minister Shimon Peres said it was expected to pass despite opposition from the right-wing Likud bloc.

Israeli officials said Mrs. Meir might resign immediately after a favorable vote, turning over the government to Premier-designate Yitzhak Rabin.

The break-through in reaching agreement came Tuesday when Israel dropped its insistence that the pact incorporate written guarantees against Palestinian terrorist infiltrators from Syria.

Plane crashes, burns

BLODGETT — Bill Long, 45, of Cape Girardeau was injured at 11 a.m. today when the Piper Pawnee crop dusting plane he was flying crashed and burned shortly after takeoff from Holyfield Airport on Route H near here.

The plane went down on the R. P. Householder farm seven miles north of Sikeston.

"I don't see how he got out," said Jim Foster of Vanduser who saw the plane crash from Interstate 55. He said the plane burst into flames as soon as it hit the ground.

Long was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. Scott County Sheriff's Deputy Bud Jones said Long received burns and a possible concussion.

The plane reportedly failed to gain altitude after taking off and nosedived into the ground. The plane was carrying a full load of ammonium nitrate fertilizer to be spread on the W. P. Hunter farm.

The plane was owned by Ag-Air Inc. of Sikeston.

Witnesses said Long tore off his burning clothes and fled the fire as soon as he was able to climb out of the plane.

2 children killed in Bootheel area

Two children were killed and five persons were injured in six area traffic accidents Wednesday, according to the highway patrol.

Sid Ashley Patrick, a 22-month-old East Prairie child, was killed about 6:45 p.m. when he was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Bertha Viola Terry, 38, of East Prairie.

The accident occurred when the child ran across Kirkendall Street to retrieve a ball. He had been playing in the yard at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Nelson.

A view inquest was held Wednesday night by Mississippi County Coroner Elgin McMikle, who ruled that the child died of a fractured skull.

The boy was born July 30, 1972 in Sikeston to Mr. and Mrs. Sid Patrick of East Prairie, who survive.

Also surviving are his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Patrick of East Prairie.

Friends may call at McMikle Funeral Home in East Prairie, where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Friday.

Burial will follow in Dogwood Cemetery.

Angel Robinson, 4, of Hayti was killed at 6:30 p.m. one-half mile east of Hayti on Highway 84 when she ran in front of a parked vehicle into the path of a car driven east by Danny Jones, 25, of Caruthersville.

The body was taken to John W. German Funeral Home in Hayti.

Sid Patrick

The driver, Cline Christopher Barter, 29, suffered serious injuries and was taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Phillip Shepard, 20, of Neelyville was seriously injured at 9:55 p.m. on Highway 67 at Neelyville when his car struck the side of a truck driven by Ira B. Rothenhoefer, 35, of Neelyville.

Shepard was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Two persons were injured in an accident at 10:40 p.m. one mile west of Morehouse on Highway 60.

The accident happened when a car driven east by Clarence Dewey Minton, 60, of Poplar Bluff attempted to make a left turn and was struck by a westbound car driven by Charles Richard Baumann, 18, of Heber Springs, Ark.

Lorene Baltimore, 62, of Poplar Bluff, a passenger in the Minton auto, was seriously injured, and Jewell Bryan, 69, of Poplar Bluff, a passenger in the Baumann auto, received minor injuries.

Both were taken to Poplar Bluff Hospital.

A one-vehicle accident at 1:45 p.m. two miles north of Steele on Highway 61 resulted in minor injuries to Edward Lee Blankenship, 26, of Blytheville, Ark.

He was taken to Chickasawba Hospital in Blytheville.

Williams convicted of assault, robbery

CHARLESTON — Charles Williams, 31, of New Madrid was convicted of felonious assault and armed robbery Wednesday by an all male Circuit Court jury presided over by Judge Marshall Craig.

The jury deliberated about 30 minutes before returning a guilty verdict and assessing Williams' punishment in the change of venue case from New Madrid County at two years in the State Department of Corrections on the assault charge and 12 years on the robbery charge.

The charges against Williams were in connection with the Dec. 4, 1973 assault with a gun on Willie Hardin, 68, of rural New Madrid and the armed robbery of the D. C. Barry Grocery and Service Station near Kewanee.

Robert Ross, 23, of San Diego, Calif. and formerly of New Madird, was sentended May 23 to 55 years in the State Department of Correction by Judge Craig on the same charges. Trial for Calvin Ross, 23, of St. Louis, charged with the same offenses, is scheduled for June 5. The three men also face similar charges in Stoddard County.

Judge Craig granted a request from Williams' attorney for 30 days in which to file a motion for a new trial and set July 9 as the date for ruling on the motion and sentencing.

Witnesses called by Hal E. Hunter, prosecuting attorney of New Madrid County, included D. C. Barry, owner of the grocery; Willie Hardin, who was left in charge of the business on the day the robbery occurred; Willie Glispie of Sikeston Route Four, a bus driver for the State School for Retarded Children in Sikeston, who was also assaulted with a gun after he stopped his bus at the Barry store; Dr. Thomas Pinkstaff of Sikeston, who treated Hardin at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston; Bob E. Bird of New Madrid, who witnessed the car speeding away from the grocery store;

Herman Maxwell of New Madrid Route One, who observed the three men shortly after their car struck a banister on the overpass of Route P and Interstate 55; the Rev. Donald Edwards of Kennett and formerly of Wolf Island, who picked the three men up on I-55 after they asked to be taken to a hospital; Virgil "Flip" Dees, deputy sheriff of New Madrid County, who investigated the robbery and the automobile accident; Mark Pellum of Jefferson City, a lab technician at the crime laboratory of the highway patrol; Cpl. Benny Rapert of the highway patrol and Joe Ross of New Madrid, a brother-in-law of Williams.

There were no defense witnesses called.

During his closing arguments, Hunter described Williams as a "lookout, or wheel man" and a man who was known locally, explaining why he did not enter the store during the robbery. He placed Williams in the same category as the other men since he took part in the planning of the robbery and shared in the proceeds.

In other action Wednesday, Judge Craig denied probation and sentenced Leslie Keene, 27, of East Prairie to two years in the State Department of Correction on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

Decree of dissolution were granted the following: Ida Ella Johnson and Paul Embro Johnson, with custody of six children being awarded Mrs. Johnson; Linda Darelen Howard and Samuel Preston Howard; Cynthia Dale Bryant and Larry Michael Bryant; Ruby Mae Irby and Homer Louis Irby; Arnold Beldon Lay and Naomi Lay; and James M. Moriarty and Beverly A. Moriarty.
